Foreign Aid Corruption Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk seeking more foreign aid funds from Congress for South Viet Nam, ran into charges today that corruption and black market operations are draining off much U.S. aid.

"I'm reluctant to vote for this," said Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, "I think most of the aid we are sending out there is being stolen."

Hays said the wife of an American civilian worker in South Viet Nam sent $36,000 in money orders back to the United States in six months.

Rusk asked the House Foreign Affairs Committee to approve a $415-million increase in foreign aid funds for the current year, of which $275 million would go to South Viet Nam.

The funds are needed mainly to ease the war strain on South Viet Nam's economy, he said, and to head off a threat of inflation.

Concern over the way aid is being used in South Viet Nam also was expressed by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis.

Zablocki said there were indications previous South Viet Nam government leaders had left office "up to their armpits in gold." He asked for assurances that the United States was taking measures to prevent corruption.

David E. Bell, director of the Agency for International Development, who appeared with Rusk as a witness, said the United States was making a determined effort to tighten controls. But he acknowledged that some is being siphoned off through corruption and black markets.

In asking for the aid money Rusk said "there is no alternative — except defeat and surrender — to meeting force with force."

Woman Disputes Doctor Wiggle Isn't 'Put On'

LONDON (AP) — Doing what comes naturally puts the wiggle in a woman's walk, says blonde actress Diane Cilento. But others in the movie glamor set agree with an American surgeon's theory that the girls do it deliberately.

Dr. Louis H. Parades, a bone specialist who teaches at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas, told a medical meeting in Chicago that there is no physiological reason for a woman to wiggle while walking.

McIlwain Challenges Dem Foe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Rep. Harry H. McIlwain filed for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination today and challenged State Sen. Frazier Reams Jr., his lone opponent, to a public debate.

"I here and now throw out the challenge that he and I get a statewide hookup to debate the issues before the primary," McIlwain said at a news conference here.

The Cincinnati attorney said he has had no contact with Reams, who previously called for a "consolidated" state ticket to avoid a fight in the May 3 primary campaign.

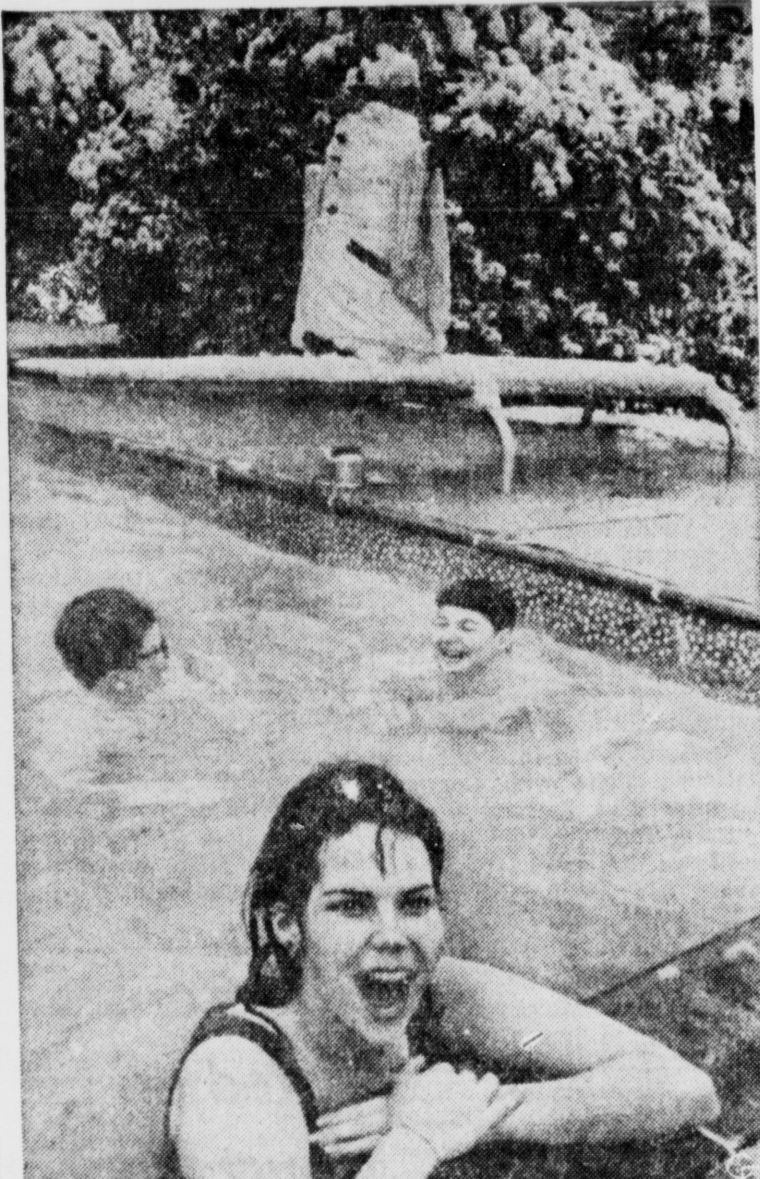

McIlwain said he rejected what he called a defeatist attitude held by some who feel that Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes cannot be defeated for re-election.

McIlwain said he would campaign on the issues of high bonded indebtedness, mental health, education, highway safety, and juvenile problems, among others.

"These programs were moving forward until Gov. Rhodes took the reins of government," McIlwain asserted.

"He has sabotaged them under the false colors of economy. For instead of economy, he is practicing waste, waste of human lives and resources and like a carnival barker in a flying circus, he has sought to detract from the seriousness of his program by noise and show."

"This indeed has been a special interest administration with the bankers getting the lion's share."

LBJ Asks 'Unprecedented' Rebuilding of U.S. Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed today a $2.3-billion, six-year federal aid program for rebuilding selected American cities "on an unprecedented scale."

The President, in his message to Congress on the cities outlined a vast program for rebuilding center cities, reorganizing and governing metropolitan areas and building new towns outside existing metropolitan areas to provide for the nation's fast-growing population.

In his demonstration program, available to any U.S. city, Johnson proposed:

"That we make massive additions to the supply of low- and moderate-cost housing.

"That we combine physical reconstruction and rehabilitation with effective social programs throughout the rebuilding process.

"That we achieve new flexibility in administrative procedures.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A two-year-old state law to require fencing of junkyards has passed its first legal hurdle, but it may take a Supreme Court decision to make it effective.

Opponents of the law and the State Attorney General's Office seem to agree it will take Ohio Supreme Court approval to put the law into effect throughout the state.

The law requires that junkyards or automobile graveyards be fenced or screened if they are within 1,000 feet of a state or county highway or within 300 feet of a township road. Salvage dealers are fighting the law as unconstitutional.

Kentucky OKs Rights Bill

Coverage Wider Than Federal Act

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, adding a touch of drama to Kentucky's new civil rights bill, will sign it Thursday morning at the base of Abraham Lincoln's statue in the Capitol rotunda.

He hailed the unprecedented action of the General Assembly as "another step in Kentucky's steady civil rights progress over the past 15 years."

The state has become the first south of the Mason-Dixon Line to enact a comprehensive measure barring racial discrimination in public accommodations and jobs. The law takes effect July 1.

It contains wider coverage than the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 and is much stronger than a version which died in committee in a 1964 legislative session.

The only opposition voiced by senators in less than an hour of debate was on the ground it is too weak.

The measure, which glided through the House 76-12 last week, won 35-1 Senate approval Tuesday. By bipartisan agreement, no amendments were offered although a dozen had been prepared.

Sen. C.W.A. McCann, D-Louisville, said, "Today, gentlemen, you are making history. You are giving the Negro what he should have had when Lincoln freed him 100 years ago."

The bill's fair employment section affects employers of as few as eight persons. The federal version now covers 100.

It grants Negroes access to places not covered in the U. S. act — such as bowling alleys, golf driving ranges, skating rinks, automatic coin laundries, and some taverns without food service.

Exempt under the state bill are barber and beauty shops, private clubs and owner-occupied rooming houses with five or fewer rooms for rent.

Police Raid Dogcatcher's Grisly Farm

EASTON, Md. (AP) — State police, accompanied by a national Humane Society official, raided the farmyard of Clifford Hughes at Goldsboro, Md., and said they discovered 125 dogs — many of them sick or undernourished.

A number of dead dogs and cats were discovered Tuesday behind a barn, not far from the pen which contained live animals.

Hughes, who called himself the unofficial dogcatcher of Caroline County, was free on $450 bond today on nine charges of cruelty to animals.

Capt. Thomas S. Smith of the state police investigative division said the yard the dogs ran in resembled a pig sty. He said the sick and underfed dogs had to be left there, however, because there was no place to take them.

The Humane Society official, Frank McMahon, director of field services, called conditions "extremely bad" and said some of the dogs were bloody and injured, apparently from fights among themselves.

Last week 100 dogs were discovered at a junk yard near White Hall, Md., near the Pennsylvania line.

The owner of the junk yard, Lester J. Brown, was charged with 29 counts of cruelty to animals.

Senators Split On Bomb Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is widely divided on the issue of whether President Johnson should order a resumption of the bombing of North Viet Nam targets in the absence of any Communist peace feelers.

Of 50 senators willing to take a position in an Associated Press survey, 25 said they are against renewing air strikes at this point. Twenty-five said they favor resumption of bombing, most of them contending such action is inevitable.

If the bombings are revived, however, only 18 think they should be expanded to include industrial and military targets in the areas of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, and Haiphong, its chief port.

Senatorial reluctance to take side on the bombing issue was emphasized by the refusal of 39 members to commit themselves on a decision they said is President Johnson's sole responsibility.

The White House said late Tuesday that the President had made no decision on the resumption of bombings. Sources said Tuesday night after Senate and House leaders met with Johnson that the congressional group had been given no word on whether the air strikes would be resumed.

Senators were asked in the AP survey: 1. Do you favor resumption of bombing of North Viet Nam targets such as those being hit before the suspension? 2. Do you favor expansion of the bombing to include military and industrial targets in such areas as Hanoi and Haiphong?

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, led the list of those opposed to resuming air attacks.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who said that "war admits of no holiday," nevertheless declined to take a position because he said,

North Carolina Boggled by Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The third and worst snow within 11 days overspread North Carolina today as wintry weather continued through most of the nation.

A belt of snow mixed with sleet and freezing rain swept across northern Georgia and central South Carolina and cold rain fell in Florida. Grle and small-craft warnings went up south of Savannah, Ga., and along Florida's western coast.

In North Carolina, snow harried drivers and forced many schools to close. Late Tuesday afternoon, 2 inches fell at Pope Air Force Base and by midnight, snow was falling over most of the state. A total of 4 inches was predicted before the snow was to end tonight. In the evening, Aberdeen, N.C., reported 3 inches and Raleigh, Waynesboro and Fayetteville 2 inches.

Charges of traffic manslaughter and failure to maintain an assured clear distance within which to stop were filed Tuesday afternoon in Circleville Municipal Court against Donald G. Ashley, 21, Flint, Mich.

Ashley was the driver of the car involved in a triple-fatal accident 6:55 p. m. Sunday on Route 23 two miles south of Circleville. Killed were his mother, Mrs. Ruth G. Ashley, 42, a brother, Randolph W. Ashley, 13, and Harry Hayter, 39, an uncle.

The charges were filed by Patrolman V. M. Ralston of the State Highway Patrol.

Cairo Peace Bid Report Is False

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has made new moves on diplomatic and political fronts amid mounting indications of a possible early resumption of the bombing of North Viet Nam targets.

The political move came at dusk Tuesday night when the President summoned 20 congressional leaders from both parties to meet with him and key members of the National Security Council to discuss Viet Nam and other matters. One source reported the meeting was not called as a result of any emergency development.

Part of the 2½-hour session was devoted to a presentation of evidence from aerial reconnaissance and reports of refugees.

These reports indicated that Hanoi has used the 34-day pause in the bombings to rebuild roads and bridges and increase the flow of supplies — and perhaps armed troops — to Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Earlier, in a series of messages to foreign governments, Johnson had acted to clear the way diplomatically for a resumption of the bombings if and when he decides that is necessary.

Announcement of Tuesday night's White House meeting was not made until the session was under way. White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers reported Johnson had asked the congressional leaders to "regard the information divulged as confidential."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was on hand, along with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Also attending were Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; William F. Raborn, director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former ambassador to Saigon who now is a presidential consultant on

Manslaughter Charges Filed In Triple Fatal Accident

Charges of traffic manslaughter and failure to maintain an assured clear distance within which to stop were filed Tuesday afternoon in Circleville Municipal Court against Donald G. Ashley, 21, Flint, Mich.

Ashley was the driver of the car involved in a triple-fatal accident 6:55 p. m. Sunday on Route 23 two miles south of Circleville. Killed were his mother, Mrs. Ruth G. Ashley, 42, a brother, Randolph W. Ashley, 13, and Harry Hayter, 39, an uncle.

The charges were filed by Patrolman V. M. Ralston of the State Highway Patrol.

In addition, William Jones, 52, of 221 Fourth Ave., will be cited for operating a slow moving vehicle with inadequate lights on the rear. He was the driver of an earthmover which the Ashley car struck in the rear.

THE manslaughter charges were filed on the recommendation of Robert Huffer, Pickaway County prosecuting attorney, Sgt. J. W. Pribble, commander of the local patrol post, said today.

The sergeant pointed out the charges were filed because Ashley is an out-of-state resident and could not be extradited on the traffic count, which is a misdemeanor.

The complete accident report will be presented at the next session of the Pickaway County Grand Jury. It will be up to the jury's discretion to determine if either party involved should be indicted for traffic manslaughter, Sgt. Pribble explained.

McIlwain Challenges Dem Foe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Rep. Harry H. McIlwain filed for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination today and challenged State Sen. Frazier Reams Jr., his lone opponent, to a public debate.

"I here and now throw out the challenge that he and I get a statewide hookup to debate the issues before the primary," McIlwain said at a news conference.

The Cincinnati attorney said he has had no contact with Reams, who previously called for a "consolidated" state ticket to avoid a fight in the May 3 primary campaign.

McIlwain said he rejected what he called a defeatist attitude held by some who feel that Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes cannot be defeated for re-election.

McIlwain said he would campaign on the issues of high bonded indebtedness, mental health, education, highway safety, and juvenile problems, among others.

LBJ Asks 'Unprecedented' Rebuilding of U.S. Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed today a $2.3-billion, six-year federal aid program for rebuilding selected American cities "on an unprecedented scale."

The President, in his message to Congress on the cities program, outlined a vast program for rebuilding center cities, reorganizing and governing metropolitan areas and building new towns outside existing metropolitan areas to provide for the nation's fast-growing population.

In his demonstration program, available to any U.S. city, Johnson proposed:

Ursula Andress, once described as the finest sample of Swiss landscape after the Alps, went along with the professor's views.

"Wiggling is very pretty if you do it right," she said, "but it's not necessary."

German-born Laya Raki also agreed with Paradies: "The wiggle is just as deliberate and seductive as Eve producing the apple. But it mustn't be overdone — after all, even a little wiggle can be a dangerous thing."

"That we focus all the techniques and talent within our society on the crisis of the American city."

Johnson said "there are few cities and towns in America which could not participate in the demonstration cities program. We shall take special care to see that urban communities of all sizes are included. The impact of the program will be significant, involving as much as 15 or 20 per cent of the existing substandard structures."

The message amounted to an operating plan for a major phase of the principal assignment Johnson has given the new Department of Housing and Urban Development — to make cities better places in which to live.

The President had sketched broad outlines of his rebuilding proposals in his State of the Union message two weeks ago.

Johnson spelled out qualifications for cities to take part in the program, including a requirement that the demonstration be of sufficient magnitude to "arrest blight and decay in entire neighborhoods" and "bring about a change in the total environment of the area affected."

The federal aid, he said, would take two forms. First would be "the complete array of all available plants and urban aids in the fields of housing, renewal, transportation, education, welfare economic opportunity and related programs."

Finally the President said, there would be special grants of up to 80 per cent of the nonfederal cost of the demonstration projects.

"These grants are to supplement the efforts of local communities," Johnson said. "They are not to be substituted for those efforts."

To get the new program rolling, Johnson proposed planning grants totaling $12 million. To carry out the program he said he would recommend appropriations over a six-year period totaling more than $2.3 billion, or an average of nearly $400 million a year.

Kentucky OKs Rights Bill

Coverage Wider Than Federal Act

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, adding a touch of drama to Kentucky's new civil rights bill, will sign it Thursday morning at the base of Abraham Lincoln's statue in the Capitol rotunda.

He hailed the unprecedented action of the General Assembly as "another step in Kentucky's steady civil rights progress over the past 15 years."

The state has become the first south of the Mason-Dixon Line to enact a comprehensive measure barring racial discrimination in public accommodations and jobs. The law takes effect July 1.

It contains wider coverage than the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 and is much stronger than a version which died in committee in a 1964 legislative session.

The only opposition voiced by senators in less than an hour of debate was on the ground it is too weak.

The measure, which glided through the House 76-12 last week, won 35-1 Senate approval Tuesday. By bipartisan agreement, no amendments were offered although a dozen had been prepared.

Sen. C.W.A. McCann, D-Louisville, said, "Today, gentlemen, you are making history. You are giving the Negro what he should have had when Lincoln freed him 100 years ago."

The bill's fair employment section affects employers of as few as eight persons. The federal version now covers 100.

It grants Negroes access to places not covered in the U. S. act — such as bowling alleys, golf driving ranges, skating rinks, automatic coin laundries, and some taverns without food service.

Exempt under the state bill are barber and beauty shops, private clubs and owner-occupied rooming houses with five or fewer rooms for rent.

The owner of the junk yard, Lester J. Brown, was charged with 29 counts of cruelty to animals.

Senators Split On Bomb Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is widely divided on the issue of whether President Johnson should order a resumption of the bombing of North Viet Nam targets in the absence of any Communist peace feelers.

Of 50 senators willing to take a position in an Associated Press survey, 25 said they are against renewing air strikes at this point. Twenty-five said they favor resumption of bombing, most of them contending such action is inevitable.

If the bombings are revived, however, only 18 think they should be expanded to include industrial and military targets in the areas of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, and Haiphong, its chief port.

Senatorial reluctance to take side on the bombing issue was emphasized by the refusal of 39 members to commit themselves on a decision they said is President Johnson's sole responsibility.

The White House said late Tuesday that the President had made no decision on the resumption of bombings. Sources said Tuesday night after Senate and House leaders met with Johnson that the congressional group had been given no word on whether the air strikes would be resumed.

Senators were asked in the AP survey: 1. Do you favor resumption of bombing of North Viet Nam targets such as those being hit before the suspension? 2. Do you favor expansion of the bombing to include military and industrial targets in such areas as Hanoi and Haiphong?

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, led the list of those opposed to resuming air attacks.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who said that "war admits of no holiday," nevertheless declined to take a position because he said,

"You don't make a final judgment unless you are sure you have the facts."

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant Republican leader, declined comment. Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, the assistant Democratic leader, said he favors resumption of bombings. He said that if the President decides to widen their scope, he will support the action.

North Carolina Boggled by Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The third and worst snow within 11 days overspread North Carolina today as wintry weather continued through most of the nation.

A belt of snow mixed with sleet and freezing rain swept across northern Georgia and central South Carolina and cold rain fell in Florida. Grle and small-craft warnings went up south of Savannah, Ga., and along Florida's western coast.

In North Carolina, snow hurried drivers and forced many schools to close. Late Tuesday afternoon, 2 inches fell at Pope Air Force Base and by midnight, snow was falling over most of the state. A total of 4 inches was predicted before the snow was to end tonight. In the evening, Aberdeen, N.C., reported 3 inches and Raleigh, Waynesboro and Fayetteville 2 inches.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ivy League Club on the fashionable Upper East Side has re-elected Peter Grippi as its president for a third term.

Today and Thursday, the victorious Mr. Grippi will be relaxing at his place on Mastic Beach, Long Island.

Then he will be back at the plush Sutton Terrace Apartments on East 63rd Street near the East River — opening doors and hailing cabs.

Peter Grippi, 55, the political leader, is also Pete the doorman at the Sutton Terrace Apartments.

Cairo Peace Bid Report Is False

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has made new moves on diplomatic and political fronts amid mounting indications of a possible early resumption of the bombing of North Viet Nam targets.

The political move came at dusk Tuesday night when the President summoned 20 congressional leaders from both parties to meet with him and key members of the National Security Council to discuss Viet Nam and other matters. One source reported the meeting was not called as a result of any emergency development.

Part of the 2½-hour session was devoted to a presentation of evidence from aerial reconnaissance and reports of refugees.

These reports indicated that Hanoi has used the 34-day pause in the bombings to rebuild roads and bridges and increase the flow of supplies — and perhaps armed troops — to Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Earlier, in a series of messages to foreign governments, Johnson had acted to clear the way diplomatically for a resumption of the bombings if and when he decides that is necessary.

Announcement of Tuesday night's White House meeting was not made until the session was under way. White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers reported Johnson had asked the congressional leaders to "regard the information divulged as confidential."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was on hand, along with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Manslaughter Charges Filed In Triple Fatal Accident

Charges of traffic manslaughter and failure to maintain an assured clear distance within which to stop were filed Tuesday afternoon in Circleville Municipal Court against Donald G. Ashley, 21, Flint, Mich.

Ashley was the driver of the car involved in a triple-fatal accident 6:55 p. m. Sunday on Route 23 two miles south of Circleville. Killed were his mother, Mrs. Ruth G. Ashley, 42, a brother, Randolph W. Ashley, 13, and Harry Hayter, 39, an uncle.

The charges were filed by Patrolman V. M. Ralston of the State Highway Patrol.

In addition, William Jones, 52, of 221 Fourth Ave., will be cited for operating a slow moving vehicle with inadequate lights on the rear. He was the driver of an earthmover which the Ashley car struck in the rear.

THE manslaughter charges were filed on the recommendation of Robert Huffer, Pickaway County prosecuting attorney, Sgt. J. W. Pribble, commander of the local patrol post, said today.

The sergeant pointed out the charges were filed because Ashley is an out-of-state resident and could not be extradited on the traffic count, which is a misdemeanor.

The complete accident report will be presented at the next session of the Pickaway County Grand Jury. It will be up to the jury's discretion to determine if either party involved should be indicted for traffic manslaughter. Sgt. Pribble explained.

GOP Club Taps Doorman time auto mechanic, onetime builder and house painter — and onetime Democrat.

When Pete became doorman at Sutton Terrace in 1950 he had come full circle, for the apartment house is only a block away from the building where he was born.

His political career dates back to 1942.

"A friend of mine couldn't get a little favor done," he says. "The Democratic club told him they wanted $200 to do the favor. So I went to Mr. Mallee (Thomas Mallee, then and now the Republican leader in the district) and got the same favor done for nothing."

So Grippi joined the Ivy Republican Club. He sold more ads for the club's annual journal and brought in more new club members than anyone else.

Four years ago Grippi was elected president, and he has been chairing meetings and setting club policies — "with Mr. Mallee" — ever since. He was re-elected again Tuesday night.

The club's name dates back more than 100 years and has nothing to do with the Ivy League. But the membership is loaded with doctors, lawyers and other prominent persons.

"They might like the glory," he says, "But they wouldn't want to spend the time and they'd probably be embarrassed going around and pushing for ads and members the way I do."

North Viet Port Said Expecting American Attack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While Washington speculated on when and if President Johnson would order a resumption of North Viet Nam bombings, the people of Haiphong, the major North Vietnamese port, were reported expecting an American attack by land or sea.

A dispatch from Haiphong in the Soviet Communist party paper Pravda said the port, which is also North Viet Nam's chief industrial center, had been turned into a fortress.

Pravda said Haiphong had been evacuated of nearly all children and some adults, that anti-aircraft guns were mounted on rooftops and that workers toiled at their machines with carbines nearby. Numerous air-raid shelters had been built, it added.

Meanwhile, U.S. planes flew more than 400 combat missions against suspected Red targets in South Viet Nam today and three U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers unloaded a coastal barrage of 72 heavy shells in a massive display of American firepower.

A U.S. spokesman said hundreds of huts and small buildings were hit in the bombardment of Viet Cong concentrations and supply camps, but the suspension of American air

Tom Conrad Re-Elected NFO Prexy

Tom Conrad, Route 1, New Holland, has been re-elected for a second term as president of the Pickaway County National Farmers Organization.

Others elected at the January meeting were Robert Barnes, Williamsport, vice president; Mildred Davis, Mt. Sterling, secretary; Patsy Hastings, Ashville, treasurer.

Elected a three-year trustee was John Diffendal. Howard Karn was named district board member and Clyde Bandy as legislative representative.

On the ground, U.S. and other Allied troops extended their post-truce offensive but failed to prod the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese regulars out of their jungle hideaways.

Although long columns slogged through the forests and rice paddies, military spokesmen reported no major encounter with the enemy or any sign of the whereabouts of the North Vietnamese troops in the central highlands.

U.S. Marines fanned out of their big base at Da Nang, 389 miles northeast of Saigon, on 300 patrols in the last 24 hours, but mostly met only an occasional gunshot, mine or booby trap. They were seeking the Viet Cong mortar crews who lobbed 42 shells into the base Tuesday, killing three Americans and two Vietnamese.

One patrol came across an unknown number of Viet Cong shortly after midnight and a moderately heavy firefight ensued. One Viet Cong was killed, a spokesman said, and Marine casualties were moderate.

The multipronged Allied offensive began with the end of the 34-day Allied cease-fire Sunday night. The U.S. Command reported today that the truce brought a sharp decline in U.S. combat deaths last week but the number of Americans wounded went down only slightly.

Twenty-two Americans were killed and 193 wounded compared with 52 killed and 237 wounded in the previous week, a U.S. spokesman said. One American was reported missing in action or captured compared with three in the seven-day period that ended Jan. 15.

The number of South Vietnamese killed remained about the same while the number reported missing rose sharply. A government spokesman said there were 209 combat deaths compared with 198 in the previous week and 155 missing compared with 78 Vietnamese wounded are not announced.

Communist losses were put at 408 killed and 56 captured compared with 714 killed and 221 captured the previous week.

Massachusetts Logs Adequate Precipitation

BOSTON (AP)—For the first time since December 1964, drought-plagued Massachusetts has received above normal precipitation for one month.

Viet Nam; and roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, just back from an overseas peace mission.

The congressional delegation included most of the top Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate and House as well as the chairmen and ranking members of such committees as Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Appropriations.

These were some of the items of evidence, mostly photographic, being weighed by the administration as it considered a resumption of bombings.

More than 200 trucks were photographed in daylight in the southern area of North Viet Nam between Dec. 31 and Jan. 13. Most of the trucks were seen on routes 1A and 15 — the latter moving toward Mugia Pass, a gateway to the Laos infiltration corridor.

On Jan. 1, a number of trucks were photographed just inside North Viet Nam's border with Laos and others were seen at a rest and refueling area just north of the Mugia Pass.

Refugees on the Laos side of the border reported counting 500 trucks going south between Dec. 27 and Jan. 14.

One report being considered in the capital suggests that as many as 1,000 infiltrators may have moved into South Viet Nam's northernmost Quang Tri Province on Christmas Day alone.

On the diplomatic front, the series of messages to foreign governments participating in the U.S. peace offensive said that the North Vietnamese Communists have shown no interest in ending the war.

Despite the suspension of bombing, the U.S. messages said, the Reds have continued infiltration and attacks in the South.

The messages are said to have made clear that the United States must now look to the security of its own and Allied forces fighting the Communist guerrillas.

In Cairo, where one of the messages was delivered Monday by U.S. Ambassador Lucius D. Battle, the Egyptian Foreign Office evidently interpreted it as a new peace overture, and it was so reported in a press dispatch from the Egyptian capital Tuesday.

The dispatch said the United States, according to informants, had offered to continue the bombing pause until North Viet Nam responded.

The White House and State Department both denied that a new peace bid had been made or that continued suspension of bombing had been promised.

As to the distribution of messages, a State Department spokesman said what had happened was this:

"We have kept the government of the United Arab Republic (Egypt), along with many other governments, informed on the situation in Viet Nam including the point that we have had no interest or affirmative response from the other side."

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey added that the messages had gone out during the past week, that they summed up U.S. peace efforts, and that they followed the main lines developed by Johnson in a letter to a congressman published Saturday night and by Rusk in a public statement Friday.

Both the Johnson and Rusk reports on the failure of the peace offensive stressed that the Vietnamese Communists had spurned all approaches.

Johnson, writing to Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., noted that the bombing of North Viet Nam targets had been halted for a month, during which Communist infiltration of men and arms from North to South had continued along with Communist attacks in the south.

"I am sure you will agree," the President wrote, "that we have a heavy obligation not to add lightly to the dangers to our troops. We must give them the support they need."

These words were generally understood to mean renewed bombing of the north was under serious consideration. White House press officer Bill D. Moyers said Tuesday, however, that Johnson had not yet made a decision.

Course Set For Training Tool Makers

Tool and die makers are in constant demand for job openings in the Columbus and surrounding area, according to an announcement today from the Ohio State Employment Service.

To relieve this need, the first training course for apprentices in this critical trade has been established and training will begin on Feb. 14.

Training will be under the Manpower Development and Training Act with local educational authorities and employers cooperating.

Applicants must be in the 18 to 28 age bracket with high school, or equivalent education and proficiency in mathematics.

Trainees will be compensated during the approximate four years of apprenticeship and then reach the journeyman rate, which is currently above $3 per hour.

Applications should be made immediately at the Ohio State Employment Service, 309 S. Fourth St., Columbus, to qualify for entry in the training class.

Local Girl Named to PR Committee

Karen Sampson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Sampson, 838 Pershing Drive, has been appointed a member of a public relations committee at Monticello College in Godfrey, Ill., as part of a program being conducted there.

The administration, faculty and student body of Monticello are dedicating themselves to the serious task of self-evaluation and long-range planning to determine what the college is now and what it can become 10 years from now.

Five faculty members and five corresponding student committees have been created to form, on the basis of extensive research, discussion and evaluation, general school policies for the coming years.

Miss Sampson's committee is considering the relationship of the college to the alumnae, the parents, the community and the mass media.

After a study of what relations are at present, they will make specific suggestions for improvement.

Miss Sampson, a graduate of Circleville High School, is a first-year student at the Illinois college.

Kidde told newsmen he was born a slave as the youngest of 16 children and fathered 16 himself by five wives.

MOSCOW (AP)—In an effort to overcome the Soviet Union's chronic farm problems, the Soviet government has formed a committee of 140 top officials to revise the rules for the country's 38,000 collective farms.

The committee is headed by Leonid Brezhnev, first secretary of the Communist party. Its members include scientists, collective farm chairmen and farmers as well as the 12-man ruling party Presidium, its six candidate members, all nine member of the party Secretariat and all party bosses of the 15 Soviet Republics.

The announcement Tuesday did not specify what changes the committee would make in the rules set 30 years ago by Stalin, but foreign observers believe it may increase incentives for farmers in an effort to boost production.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey added that the messages had gone out during the past week, that they summed up U.S. peace efforts, and that they followed the main lines developed by Johnson in a letter to a congressman published Saturday night and by Rusk in a public statement Friday.

Both the Johnson and Rusk reports on the failure of the peace offensive stressed that the Vietnamese Communists had spurned all approaches.

Johnson, writing to Rep. Brock Adams, D. Wash., noted that the bombing of North Viet Nam targets had been halted for a month, during which Communist infiltration of men and arms from North to South had continued along with Communist attacks in the south.

"I am sure you will agree," the President wrote, "that we have a heavy obligation not to add lightly to the dangers of our troops. We must give them the support they need."

These words were generally understood to mean renewed bombing of the north was under serious consideration. White House press officer Bill D. Moyers said Tuesday, however, that Johnson had not yet made a decision.

Course Set For Training Tool Makers

Tool and die makers are in constant demand for job openings in the Columbus and surrounding area, according to an announcement today from the Ohio State Employment Service.

Local Girl Named to PR Committee

Karen Sampson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Sampson, 838 Pershing Drive, has been appointed a member of a public relations committee at Monticello College in Godfrey, Ill., as part of a program being conducted there.

The administration, faculty and student body of Monticello are dedicating themselves to the serious task of self-evaluation and long-range planning to determine what the college is now and what it can become 10 years from now.

Five faculty members and five corresponding student committees have been created to form, on the basis of extensive research, discussion and evaluation, general school policies for the coming years.

Miss Sampson's committee is considering the relationship of the college to the alumnae, the parents, the community and the mass media.

After a study of what relations are at present, they will make specific suggestions for improvement.

Miss Sampson, a graduate of Circleville High School, is a first-year student at the Illinois college.

News of World in Brief

WESTBROOK, Maine (AP)—Moe Harnois is still playing with a band at 82.

"When you play with a band," he said in an interview Tuesday, "you have to play the way the director wants you to. When I play alone, I can go as fast or as slow as I like."

A clarinetist, Harnois prefers classical and march compositions.

"That noise isn't music," he says of jazz.

Harnois said he stopped marching when he was 70.

NEW YORK (AP)—A 59-year-old native of Detroit is the new editor in chief of the Communist party newspaper, The Worker.

He is Carl Winter, who served a five-year prison sentence for conspiracy to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the U.S. government.

Winter, who joined the Communist party in 1925, was named to the job Tuesday. He will succeed James E. Jackson, 51, who becomes publisher and president of the firm that publishes the newspaper.

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Thomas Kidde has decided to apply for medicare after all.

He's healthy all right, but it's just that he's getting on in years. Records say he is 114.

Social Security officers said Tuesday that his application for Social Security health payments listed his birth date as Aug. 31, 1851, in Mobile, Ala.

Kidde told newsmen he was born a slave as the youngest of 16 children and fathered 16 himself by five wives.

MOSCOW (AP)—In an effort to overcome the Soviet Union's chronic farm problems, the Soviet government has formed a committee of 140 top officials to revise the rules for the country's 38,000 collective farms.

The committee is headed by Leonid Brezhnev, first secretary of the Communist party. Its members include scientists, collective farm chairmen and farmers as well as the 12-man ruling party Presidium, its six candidate members, all nine members of the party Secretariat and all party bosses of the 15 Soviet Republics.

The announcement Tuesday did not specify what changes the committee would make in the rules set 30 years ago by Stalin, but foreign observers believe it may increase incentives for farmers in an effort to boost production.

CHAMONIX, France (AP)—As soon as the weather clears, Alpine guides will attempt to pick up pieces of wreckage from the Indian airliner which crashed into Mont Blanc. The wreckage will be turned over to experts.

Young Farmers' Topic Published

The Pickaway Young Farmers' Council is one of 1,597 Ohio Farm Bureau advisory councils that meet once a month to discuss farm problems and other topics.

One of the discussions by the local group was published in a recent edition of "Minutes", a monthly magazine sponsored by the Nationwide Insurance Co.

Topic of the published discussion was "Should the United States Feed the World?" Participating in the discussion were Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson, Hal Richard, Dick Tootle and Edwin Taylor.

North Viet Port Said Expecting American Attack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While Washington speculated on when and if President Johnson would order a resumption of North Viet Nam bombings, the people of Haiphong, the major North Vietnamese port, were reported expecting an American attack by land or sea.

A dispatch from Haiphong in the Soviet Communist party paper Pravda said the port, which is also North Viet Nam's chief industrial center, had been turned into a fortress.

Pravda said Haiphong had been evacuated of nearly all children and some adults, that anti-aircraft guns were mounted on rooftops and that workers toiled at their machines with carbines nearby. Numerous air-raid shelters had been built, it added.

Meanwhile, U.S. planes flew more than 400 combat missions against suspected Red targets in South Viet Nam today and three U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers unloaded a coastal barrage of 729 heavy shells in a massive display of American firepower.

A U.S. spokesman said hundreds of huts and small buildings were hit in the bombardment of Viet Cong concentrations and supply camps, but the suspension of American air attacks against the Communist North continued into the 34th day.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes, including the eight-engine B52 Stratofortresses from Guam, took part in the all-out assault.

On the ground, U.S. and other Allied troops extended their post-truce offensive but failed to prod the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese regulars out of their jungle hideaways.

Although long columns slogged through the forests and rice paddies, military spokesmen reported no major encounter with the enemy of any sign of the whereabouts of the North Vietnamese troops in the central highlands.

U.S. Marines fanned out of their big base at Da Nang, 389 miles northeast of Saigon, on 300 patrols in the last 24 hours, but mostly met only an occasional gunshot, mine or booby trap. They were seeking the Viet Cong mortar crews who lobbed 42 shells into the base Tuesday, killing three Americans and two Vietnamese.

One patrol came across an unknown number of Viet Cong shortly after midnight and a moderately heavy firefight ensued. One Viet Cong was killed, a spokesman said, and Marine casualties were moderate.

The multipronged Allied offensive began with the end of the 34-day Allied cease-fire Sunday night. The U.S. Command reported today that the truce brought a sharp decline in U.S. combat deaths last week but the number of Americans wounded went down only slightly.

Twenty-two Americans were killed and 193 wounded compared with 52 killed and 237 wounded in the previous week, a U.S. spokesman said. One American was reported missing in action or captured compared with three in the seven-day period that ended Jan. 15.

The number of South Vietnamese killed remained about the same while the number reported missing rose sharply. A government spokesman said there were 209 combat deaths compared with 198 in the previous week and 155 missing compared with 78 Vietnamese wounded are not announced. Communist losses were put at 408 killed and 56 captured compared with 714 killed and 221 captured the previous week.

Tom Conrad Re-Elected NFO Prexy

Tom Conrad, Route 1, New Holland, has been re-elected for a second term as president of the Pickaway County National Farmers Organization.

Others elected at the January meeting were Robert Barnes, Williamsport, vice president; Mildred Davis, Mt. Sterling, secretary; Patsy Hastings, Ashville, treasurer.

Elected a three-year trustee was John Diffendal. Howard Karn was named district board member and Clyde Bandy as legislative representative.

Voted to the most bargaining committee were K. Bidwell, R. Beavers, V. Gifford, T. Overy and F. Dountz. Alternates are L. Carle, J. Gifford and J. Diffendal.

A report was given by Conrad on the success of the membership drive. NFO officials claim a substantial gain in both the old and new NFO organized states.

The members were also told of the success of the meat marketing arrangement with processors. A Columbus packing firm is accepting hogs under the NFO marketing arrangement for the southern half of the state. Conrad said that many people do not think that NFO has had any effect on the livestock market with the marketing arrangements. He went on explaining the NFO meat marketing arrangements is a holding action in reverse. Instead of selling livestock as farmers have in the past, NFO members are channeling their production to a number of processors. This channeling of livestock together with the short supply of livestock has caused the processors to compete for livestock, the county president stated.

Final plans were made for the NFO Ham Supper to be held on February 12 at Westfall High School. Erhard Pfingsten NFO National Vice President will be the speaker.

Next county meeting will be Feb. 15 at 8 p. m. in the 4-H and Grange Building.

Woman Lies Helpless 2 Days after Fall

CINCINNATI (AP)—Mrs. Cecilia Heyl, 61, fell in her basement and was helpless for two days. She died Tuesday apparently of injuries suffered in the fall, police said.

She was found Monday night by police after her daughter, Mrs. B. J. Peckskamp, said she couldn't gain entrance to the house.

Massachusetts Logs Adequate Precipitation

BOSTON (AP)—For the first time since December 1964, drought-plagued Massachusetts has received above normal precipitation for one month. The Weather Bureau said normal precipitation in Boston for the month of January is 3.94 inches. With a week still to go, and another storm expected before the end of the week, total precipitation already is 4.22 inches.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Can the federal budget really change the economy's course? In the second of four articles, Sam Dawson, AP Business News Analyst, tells how the government fiscal policy has been working.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Changing the government's policy from a goal of stimulating a lagging economy to restraining a go-go one isn't always as easy or effective as it sounds. But this time government economists and fiscal experts are using what they call new methods and better understanding of what makes the economy tick.

And they have a big talking point: a five-year record that bears all the outward signs of success.

Using tax cuts and pump priming as pep pills has been tried many times before. Using increased tax collections and tighter money as a curb on speculation has, too. In many instances the past two government action has lagged so far behind the business cycle as to be of little help, and sometimes a hindrance.

One reason has been that the government policy makers got around to it too late. Another was that Congress took too long to make the changes.

The new economists say they are right on the ball now. And Congress may move fast out of respect for the record of the last five years.

From 1961 to the summer of 1965 the economic and fiscal policies of the government were aimed at building up demand for goods and services and spurring economic growth. More money was pumped into the economy by the government spending than taken out by tax collections.

In 1964 and 1965 taxes were cut for individuals and corporations. It all added up to more money to spend. And all hands spent more. Business boomed and jobs multiplied.

Inflation was avoided for several reasons: As long as unemployment was high, wage demands were moderate and job security the prime union goal. Idle plant facilities kept competition keen and prices down. Automation meant more units of production per man-hour of labor and held costs down. Consumer demand — and confidence — grew along with the economy but there were still enough goods for everyone to buy.

A change became evident last summer. The economy was expanding faster than any one had expected. Idle plant capacity shrank. The jobless rate dropped. Productivity from new equipment wasn't rising as fast as before. Wholesale prices, long stable, started moving up fast. The consumer price index rose sharply toward the end of 1965. And the buildup in the Viet Nam war foretold increased spending, greater demand for materials that go into both military and civilian products, a callup of more youths at the age they enter the labor force.

The economy was boiling up fast under the lid of capacity and supply. The trick was to keep the lid from popping off but at the same time keep the economy just hot enough for everyone's taste.

The new economists say the government can handle this.

Next: What steps are government and business taking to make 1966 different?

THE GUARD at the entrance to a flossy Long Island estate barred the way to a character leading by a halter an enormous elephant. "We don't allow no elephants in here," stated the guard in no uncertain tones.

Back came the character the next day leading the same elephant. He had, however, pasted a slice of bread on the elephant's trunk, and another slice of bread on its tail.

"Didn't I tell you yesterday," growled the guard, "that we don't allow no elephants in here?"

"So what?" said the character. "This isn't an elephant. This is a sandwich."

A dogged optimist in Fort Worth advises, "Never be discouraged by a series of misfortunes. No matter how dismal things may appear on the surface you may rest assured everything will turn out for the best. My own father believed this with all his heart for all of his life. He died in the poorhouse—but while they were digging his grave—they struck oil!"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLLMAN, M.D.

When aspirin or other drugs are purchased a wad of cotton fills the bottle. What is the purpose of the cotton and should it be replaced after the bottle is opened?

Many drugs, especially those that contain aspirin, are made "soft" for quicker absorption. They, therefore, are more fragile and easily broken. Drug manufacturers use cotton to fill the empty space in the bottle in order to keep the pills from being fragmented.

When once the bottle is opened for home use, there is no need to replace the cotton. If one takes a half empty bottle while traveling, it is wise to protect the pills with cotton to insure proper dosage by keeping them intact.

Is there any truth to the fact that sugar may be responsible for hardening of the arteries?

From the University of London came a report by Mr. John Yudkin about the possible relationship between sugar and arteriosclerosis. For a short while there was a flurry of excitement that sugar, not fat, may be the culprit for some forms of heart disease.

This work has not been studied sufficiently and has not been authenticated by studies in America to cause any concern to people whose diets include sugar in moderation.

There may be specific reasons why a physician may limit the sugar intake. Sugar should not be added to the long list of fears that already exist about health.

What is the importance of albumin when it is found in the urine?

Normally, albumin does not pass into the urine when the body is in good health. Occasionally, albumin is found in the urine of healthy infants during the first few weeks of life. This usually disappears quickly.

Persistent albumin in the urine must be studied for the possibility of kidney disease, high blood pressure and heart disease. Sometimes, this will follow the use of drugs or be associated with high fevers.

Albumin is only one of the substances that is routinely studied during an examination of the urine.

What is meant by Spina bifida?

Spina bifida is a defect in the spinal column due to some malformation in development. There are many forms of this condition.

Most of them do not affect the health of the child or interfere with the growth. Sometimes, surgery may be necessary to close the bony defect in the spinal canal.

It is not a hereditary disease. If it exists in one member of the family there should not be concern that this condition will necessarily occur in others.

The accumulation of wax in the outer ear is a sign of health not of disease. It should be removed gently and only by those who know how.

NEW YORK (AP)—A middle-aged man of small mechanical aptitude is in a box these days. Life is just one frustration after another.

They — whoever they are — may deny it, but there is a conspiracy to complicate every-day machines to the point where you need an engineering degree to cope with a typewriter.

Got a minute?

In a middle-aged newsman's salad days the typewriter was a simple, sturdy, mechanical device for setting words down on paper. It firmly suppressed its personality, if it had one, and existed only to serve.

Any fool in the office could operate a typewriter, and many did.

Typewriters have changed. One of the new breed was foisted off on this corner recently by the office manager.

It has a streamlined body, gaudy tail fins, automatic transmission, power steering, banks of sealed-in computer units, tiers of buttons and levers and the over-all gloss of a high-fashion model.

It must weigh a good 35 or 40 pounds and at best only 25 per cent is payload. The rest is window dressing to make the older typewriters look obsolete.

Merely setting the margins requires the use of no fewer than four buttons and toggle switches. These are easily confused with a bristle of similar devices for varying the touch tension, starting up the windshield wiper, turning on the built-in radio and raising the windows.

So far it has proved impossible to master the combination, and the typewriter just sits there in smug idleness.

A rumor monger in the office claims that if you should get everything set right simultaneously a secret panel on the right hand of the fuselage will spring open and decant a jackpot of 99 silver dollars. He may be right. We will never know.

Very often well-meaning persons are trying to find a good home for dogs and cats through a newspaper ad. Generally these animals are given away free of charge.

Dealers of animals are looking for opportunities such as these. It is a good chance for them to cash in extra money selling these unfortunate creatures to research laboratories. Yes, it is easy money and without doubt tax-free. Furthermore there is no law to prohibit this sickening $50-million dollar a year business.

If people only knew how much and for how long these animals suffer in junkyards first and then in laboratories, they would rather send these unwanted to the humane shelter.

Death would be a blessing to these puppies and kittens when you compare it to a life of six, eight or more years spent in inadequate cages and the object of unlimited and cruel experiments under the excuse of progress in science.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Can the federal budget really change the economy's course? In the second of four articles, Sam Dawson, AP Business News Analyst, tells how the government fiscal policy has been working.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Changing the government's policy from a goal of stimulating a lagging economy to restraining a go-go one isn't always as easy or effective as it sounds. But this time government economists and fiscal experts are using what they call new methods and better understanding of what makes the economy tick.

And they have a big talking point: a five-year record that bears all the outward signs of success.

Using tax cuts and pump priming as pep pills has been tried many times before. Using increased tax collections and tighter money as a curb on speculation has, too. In many instances in the past the government action has lagged so far behind the business cycle as to be of little help, and sometimes a hindrance.

One reason has been that the government policy makers got around to it too late. Another was that Congress took too long to make the changes.

The new economists say they are right on the ball now. And Congress may move fast out of respect for the record of the last five years.

From 1961 to the summer of 1965 the economic and fiscal policies of the government were aimed at building up demand for goods and services and spurring economic growth. More money was pumped into the economy by the government spending than taken out by tax collections.

In 1964 and 1965 taxes were cut for individuals and corporations. It all added up to more money to spend. And all hands spent more. Business boomed and jobs multiplied.

Inflation was avoided for several reasons: As long as unemployment was high, wage demands were moderate and job security the prime union goal. Idle plant facilities kept competition keen and prices down. Automation meant more units of production per man-hour of labor and held costs down. Consumer demand — and confidence — grew along with the economy but there were still enough goods for everyone to buy.

A change became evident last summer. The economy was expanding faster than any one had expected. Idle plant capacity shrank. The jobless rate dropped. Productivity from new equipment wasn't rising as fast as before. Wholesale prices, long stable, started moving up fast. The consumer price index rose sharply toward the end of 1965. And the buildup in the Viet Nam war foretold increased spending, greater demand for materials that go into both military and civilian products, a callup of more youths at the age they enter the labor force.

The economy was boiling up fast under the lid of capacity and supply. The trick was to keep the lid from popping off but at the same time keep the economy just hot enough for everyone's taste.

The new economists say the government can handle this.

Search for Successor

By John Chamberlain

The Seventeenth Congressional District in New York City is the communications center of the world. Here are the publishing companies, the radio - TV broadcasting studios, the advertising agencies and the magazine offices that set the styles, the tastes and the opinions of the nation. The District, up to the first day of January in 1966, was represented in Washington by no less a person than John Vliet Lindsay, now the youthful mayor of New York.

On February 8, the citizens of the Seventeenth District will go to the polls to choose a successor to Mr. Lindsay. The main candidates are Republican Theodore Kupferman, a City Councilman who is running as a "Lindsay team" man, and Democrat Orin Lehman, an enormously attractive veteran who hopes to follow in the distinguished footsteps of his uncle, the late Herbert Lehman, former governor and U. S. Senator. They are both Welfareist liberals, both anxious for a peace in Vietnam even if it is to be had on an inconclusive basis, both potential high spenders for purposes that could be good or bad, depending on the circumstances. In other words, though Kupferman and Lehman may be just what the Gallup Poll doctor has ordered for John Lindsay's old bailiwick, the voters of the Seventeenth aren't likely to be treated to a campaign that will discuss issues in any critical sense.

We could, however, have a lively and argumentative contest in the Seventeenth District if the communications center of the United States would only honor one of its own to the point of insisting that he be allowed to get in on the debate. The communications man who happens to be in the race against Kupferman and Lehman is Jeffrey St. John, a TV producer and moderator whose work has frequently been featured on Channel 13. St. John, a thirty-five-year-old journalist and broadcaster who has covered both Capitol Hill and the State Department, is the Conservative Party's choice to succeed Lindsay in Congress. He is an effective TV personality, but to date he hasn't managed to stage a William Buckley type breakthrough. The two major candidates have been dismissing him, in a rather top-lofty manner, as an interloper who wants to act as a "soiler."

They have been hesitant about meeting him in direct confrontation. Mr. St. John's argument is that there is nothing to "spoil" in the Congressional race, for the voters are going to get somebody who is quite acceptable to the New York Liberal Party no matter which major candidate wins. All he insists upon is that the Seventeenth Congressional District shall be treated to a meaningful campaign in which the virtually identical ideas of Lehman and Kupferman are tested in the light of criticism.

Jeffrey St. John happens to be a literate fellow with a William Buckley-type mind. He moves easily between the worlds of letters and politics. As a former correspondent in Asia, he has acted as interviewer in Channel 13 foreign affairs specials such as the recent "Red China: the Wind and the Grass." He was also the producer and moderator of a Channel 13 feature called "The Art and Anger of Ezra Pound," in which he let Robert Lowell, the anti-Vietnamese War poet who tangled recently with President Lyndon Johnson, have his say on a controversial personality.

In contradistinction to both Lehman and Kupferman, Mr. St. John thinks the U.S. should fight to win in Southeast Asia.

He sees a slight verbal difference between the Lehman and Kupferman stands on a Southeast Asian peace, for Kupferman has advocated a quick withdrawal of American forces from the region and Lehman thinks the U. S. should stick around long enough to obtain an honorable settlement. But it is St. John's contention that if a coalition government in South Vietnam is accepted as the price of peace, the issue of immediate versus staggered withdrawal will turn out to be meaningless. Mr. St. John also wants an argument on Statist versus voluntary welfare, and has proposed the creation of a "Council on Individual National Solutions" in the Seventeenth District.

We could witness a colorful campaign in the Seventeenth if the communications industry's own man could only crack the sound barrier.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Thanks to the wonderful people and organizations of my hometown, Circleville, for all mail which I received at Christmas time.

Words cannot express the gratitude and warm feeling that I have for all those who took time to send messages of cheer and encouragement to those of us who are so far from home. Such acts make us feel that we are not fighting and dying for nothing, but for the right to return to a free land and eventually live among men, women and children in peace.

When you see the look of fear and terror in the faces of youngsters over here you give thanks and pray that such things shall never happen to the little ones at home — such as the little Atwater first graders who sent me greetings with each one signing his or her name. I hold a special place in my heart for them because there is no wish so sincere as that of a child.

Sherman Would Say Same about Viet Nam

The Circleville Herald, Wed. Jan. 26, 1966 5
Circleville, Ohio

'HOME' IN VIET NAM — This machinegun position was the first "home" of Pvt. Jerry Walters, Route 2, during his long stay in Viet Nam. Walters said after the first 7-8 weeks they were there, soldiers were able to construct better living quarters. This was completed, he noted, only after the rainy season. He said foxholes would fill up with water from heavy rains almost daily during the monsoon period.

CHOW TIME — Pvt. Jerry Walters takes time out for chow in Viet Nam during the "big meal" of the day. He said when not on combat missions, members of his unit received three meals a day. However, only one of them was "hot, solid food." The other two were C-rations. Whenever possible American soldiers in Viet Nam strip down to the waist because of the intense heat and humidity. This explains the reason for the no shirt picture.

Combat Experiences Remain Vivid to Jackson Twp. GI

EDITOR'S NOTE — Grim realities of the war in Viet Nam are known well by servicemen from this community serving there. Jerry Walters of Jackson Twp. just completed more than six months in the strife-torn country as an infantryman with the famous 1st Division (Big Red One). His experiences probably could be repeated by thousands of other soldiers with duty there. Here is his story as told to The Herald.

By RICHARD DAVIS

Times haven't really changed in the past 100 years. "War is hell!" General William T. Sherman's statement that came out of the Civil War is even closer to the truth today. Ask any American soldier that saw action during World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict — or Viet Nam.

Jerry Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Walters, Route 2, was discharged from the Army last week after spending more than six months in a war zone near Saigon in South Viet Nam.

Walters, a 1961 graduate of Jackson Twp. High School, is home now. He brought with him many pictures, souvenirs, and foreign purchased gifts for members of his family.

But most important of all, he brought back an accounting of nearly seven months of "hell" on earth.

The Retail Merchants Committee of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a breakfast meeting for 7 a. m. Thursday at Noel's King Boy on Lancaster Pike.

periences, like those of thousands of other American soldiers in Viet Nam, make one's blood run cold.

HE WAS drafted to active duty with the U.S. Army on Jan. 8, 1964. Following basic training he was assigned to Company C, 2nd Battalion, 16th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division, at Ft. Riley, Kan.

On June 25 of last year his company left San Francisco by ship for a one-year tour of permanent duty status in the Pacific. None of the men knew where they were going or were too concerned, Walters said. "Most of us were counting the months until we were to be discharged and weren't concerned about where the remaining time was to be spent."

After departure, members of his unit were informed they were headed for Viet Nam. The boat trip was 21 days, non-stop, he said and nobody really knew what to expect although as the arrival date approached there was a general feeling of fear aboard ship.

The troops were transported by plane to Ben Hoa (pronounced Ben Wah) and from there they were taken by truck to an old rifle range, where their camp was set up. This was to be their home for "a long time." Nobody knew exactly how long or if they would ever leave alive, Walters said.

It was terribly hot and humid the first few weeks, the ex-soldier said. Temperatures averaged 100 degrees during the daytime.

One day, in midsummer, government weather equipment recorded a reading of 130 degrees, he said, and on top of the heat it rained every day. "You could almost set your watch by the rainfall," Walters noted. "At 4:30 it would start raining and continue to about 10:30 p. m."

THE BASE camp was located about 30 miles from Saigon, according to Walters, and there was literally nothing there in the way of equipment when they arrived. However, after the first month or so a mess hall was constructed by the men in the company and frames were built up, along with concrete floors, for living quarters.

By the time all of this was completed, he recalled, the rainy season was over. Before this the men slept in fox holes that "would fill up with water during the night because of the heavy rains."

Walters' company, headed by Capt. Robert Canady, had only five men killed in the 28-week period, Walters said. "This is a good record and it is due entirely to the efforts and terrific leadership of Captain Canady," he added.

He commended the American troops for taking care of the sick, the wounded and the dead. Anytime a casualty was reported, a helicopter would be contacted and reported almost immediately to the troubled spot to remove anyone not able for combat duty.

In order to get into a war zone Walters said, helicopters had to be used. He said the jungle areas in most part were too dense for trucks and tanks.

The only open areas were rice paddies. Therefore a copter would take the men into the war zone, lower itself over a rice paddy and the men would jump out into the stagnant water and mud of the rice field. "Most of the time we would sink into the mire up to our waists and shoulders," the local soldier explained.

"You could hardly move after jumping into the muck," he said. "And the stench was so bad not one of the men will ever forget it."

Walters carried an M-60 machine gun along with 500 rounds of ammunition on each trip into combat zones. The Viet Cong were everywhere and "no place in the country could be considered safe," he said. "The VC as the men referred to the Viet Cong, were satisfied if they merely wounded one American or could harass the troops," Walters noted.

He said the Americans could never be sure of the number of Viet Cong that were killed in battles and skirmishes. As soon as a VC was shot or killed, another VC would drag the body away and bury or hide it.

"Many times the Viet Cong women were taken along on ambushes or other combat missions to help drag the wounded or dead Viet Cong out of sight," Walters said. "And most of them carried a big meat hook so they could drag the bodies easier."

However, he recalled having counted 42 Viet Cong dead in an area following an air strike. "The bodies had swollen up and some of them had burst open during the heat of the day," he noted, "and between the stench of the decaying bodies and the stagnant water of the rice fields many of the men became very sick."

One day towards the end of his stay in Viet Nam, while on convoy an eight or ten-year-old boy was spotted along the road by soldiers riding in the back of one of the trucks. The Viet Cong boy "tossed a grenade into the rear of one of the transport vehicles, wounding 21 men," Walters was in the next truck. Immediate action was taken against the youth.

ANOTHER incident Walters recalls occurred on his birthday — Oct. 20, 1965. He said a dozen men, including himself, were sent out on an ambush in an area where the VC was operating. He said the men were walking along and hadn't seen anything when suddenly gunfire came from all directions and they realized they had walked into an ambush set up by the Viet Cong.

The Americans began firing back with machine guns and Walters said he "thought all of the men were going to be killed." However, only one man was wounded before the Viet Cong fled.

One of the primary targets for Americans in Viet Nam are rice storage areas. Walters said the Viet Cong exist almost entirely on rice and jungle foods. "Every dead VC I saw had a small bag of rice tied to his waist," he said.

Many times rice would be stored in the jungle areas under a piece of tin awaiting Viet Cong troops. Upon discovery of these storage areas, American soldiers had orders to burn them. He estimated the hidden rice to be as much as 50 tons in some areas.

"There's nobody there that isn't afraid," Walters said. He stated that he had talked with men who fought during World War II and the Korean conflict and they all agreed they "had never seen anything like the savages in Viet Nam. They place no value whatsoever on human life — theirs or ours," Walters said.

"Seeing another American, sometimes a buddy, being transported back to the base covered with a blanket creates a feeling I'll never forget," the Jackson Twp. resident stated. "We never knew who would be next."

HE SAID Viet Cong soldiers are "experts at booby traps." He recalled an incident when a tank ran over one of the crudely-made explosive traps. "It blew a hole in the armored vehicle the size of an office desk and killed the driver — his legs were blown completely off," he said.

In October, Walters had indications he would be discharged in January. So he ordered a new convertible from Harden Chevrolet. He figured if he did return "he deserved it" and if he didn't — "there would be no harm done."

At least one bright spot can be included in Walters' story. He said at Christmas time, all the men received "lots of Christmas cards, packages and gifts." He said he received mail from college fraternities, church groups and other organizations and individuals.

"This is probably one of the best things the folks back home can do for servicemen," Walters said. "Write to any soldier you can and as often as possible."

One of the souvenirs he brought back from Viet Nam was a silk jacket. Colorfully embroidered on the back is: "When I die I'll go to heaven, because I lived in Hell — Viet Nam."

March of Dimes Aids Two Children in Same Family

In many small ways, Billy Joe Gray, who is only 2 years old, is protective toward his sister, Terry, who is almost twice his age. You see it when they're frolicking with their pointer, Fritz, for example.

Billy Joe only dimly understands why he feels protective toward his older sister. All that he knows for sure is that Terry doesn't always act like other youngsters.

Billy Joe's instincts are a sound, Terry doesn't always act like other little girls on the block. She's mentally retarded.

Terry's tragedy stems from an inherited disorder called phenylketonuria, or PKU, for short. What is singular about this story is that Billy Joe also has PKU; but, unlike his pretty sister, he's as bright as a button.

The answer to the puzzle of why a brother and sister both with PKU are so dissimilar mentally comes when you ask about their medical histories at the March of Dimes Birth Defects Center at Boston (Mass.) City Hospital.

There it's disclosed that PKU was not detected in Terry until she was 17 months old. Her mother, Mrs. Jeanne Gray, of Cochrane, Mass., had given birth to a normal boy and girl before Terry was born. In very early infancy Terry also seemed normal. Then, after Terry was about six months of age, her mother wondered why the baby never talked and was unable to roll over by herself.

PKU remained undetected in Terry until soon after Billy Joe came along, at which time his sister was 17 months old. Billy Joe was two months premature and at birth weighed only 3 lbs., 14 ounces. When Billy Joe, at the age of 23 days, failed to do as well as he should, he was tested at Boston City Hospital for PKU, an examination that had then become routine at that hospital. The results showed he had PKU.

At this point, of course, the doctors immediately suspected what might be the source of Terry's physical and mental slowness. Suspicion became certainty when Terry, after her test, also was shown to be a victim of PKU.

The PKU test was developed by Dr. Robert Guthrie of the University of New York at Buffalo with the aid of March of Dimes grants and other assistance.

Once the PKU diagnoses were made, Terry and Billy Joe were immediately placed on a special diet low in phenylalanine. This is an amino acid which builds up in the bodies of PKU victims to cause brain damage.

But, tragically, PKU inflicts its brain damage during the first few months of life. At the age of 17 months, Terry was already afflicted though she is by no means as retarded as some other children in similar circumstances. Billy Joe is thriving.

Sherman Would Say Same about Viet Nam

'HOME' IN VIET NAM — This machinegun position was the first "home" of Pvt. Jerry Walters, Route 2, during his long stay in Viet Nam. Walters said after the first 7-8 weeks they were there, soldiers were able to construct better living quarters. This was completed, he noted, only after the rainy season. He said foxholes would fill up with water from heavy rains almost daily during the monsoon period.

CHOW TIME — Pvt. Jerry Walters takes time out for chow in Viet Nam during the "big meal" of the day. He said when not on combat missions, members of his unit received three meals a day. However, only one of them was "hot, solid food." The other two were C-rations. Whenever possible American soldiers in Viet Nam strip down to the waist because of the intense heat and humidity. This explains the reason for the no shirt picture.

Combat Experiences Remain Vivid to Jackson Twp. GI

EDITOR'S NOTE — Grim realities of the war in Viet Nam are known well by servicemen from this community serving there. Jerry Walters of Jackson Twp. just completed more than six months in the strife-torn country as an infantryman with the famous 1st Division (Big Red One). His experiences probably could be repeated by thousands of other soldiers with duty there. Here is his story as told to The Herald.

By RICHARD DAVIS

Times haven't really changed in the past 100 years. "War is hell," General William T. Sherman's statement that came out of the Civil War is even closer to the truth today. Ask any American soldier that saw action during World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict — or Viet Nam.

Jerry Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Walters, Route 2, was discharged from the Army last week after spending more than six months in a war zone near Saigon in South Viet Nam.

Walters, a 1961 graduate of Jackson Twp. High School, is home now. He brought with him many pictures, souvenirs, and foreign purchased gifts for members of his family.

But most important of all, he brought back an accounting of nearly seven months of "hell" on earth.

Some of his combat experiences, like those of thousands of other American soldiers in Viet Nam, make one's blood run cold.

HE WAS drafted to active duty with the U.S. Army on Jan. 8, 1964. Following basic training he was assigned to Company C, 2nd Battalion, 16th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division, at Ft. Riley, Kan.

On June 25 of last year his company left San Francisco by ship for a one-year tour of permanent duty status in the Pacific. None of the men knew where they were going or were too concerned, Walters said. "Most of us were counting the months until we were to be discharged and weren't concerned about where the remaining time was to be spent."

After departure, members of his unit were informed they were headed for Viet Nam. The boat trip was 21 days, non-stop, he said and nobody really knew what to expect although as the arrival date approached there was a general feeling of fear aboard ship.

The troops were transported by plane to Ben Hoa (pronounced Ben Wah) and from there they were taken by truck to an old rifle range, where their camp was set up. This was to be their home for "a long time." Nobody knew exactly how long or if they would ever leave alive, Walters said.

It was terribly hot and humid the first few weeks, the ex-soldier said. Temperatures averaged 100 degrees during the daytime.

One day, in midsummer, government weather equipment recorded a reading of 130 degrees, he said, and on top of the heat it rained every day. "You could almost set your watch by the rainfall," Walters noted. "At 4:30 it would start raining and continue to about 10:30 p. m."

THE BASE camp was located about 30 miles from Saigon, according to Walters, and there was literally nothing there in the way of equipment when they arrived. However, after the first month or so a mess hall was constructed by the men in the company and frames were built up, along with concrete floors, for living quarters.

By the time all of this was completed, he recalled, the rainy season was over. Before this the men slept in fox holes that "would fill up with water during the night because of the heavy rains."

Monday Club Entertained By CHS Curtain Callers

The Circleville High School Curtain Callers entertained members of Monday Club when they met in the high school cafeteria.

Ronald Mead, teacher of speech, drama and English at CHS, presented the organization composed of students of the high school. He spoke of their strong interest in drama and theatricals and stated that many have entered district as well as state competition.

Glenn Plum, student director of the organization, introduced Miss Ellissa Evans, who gave a dramatic cutting from the play, "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder. Miss Linda Conrad presented a humorous cutting from the play, "Rehearsal".

Miss Susie Bennett gave a reading from "Sorry, Wrong Number" by Lucile Fletcher. Mr. Plum completed the program with a humorous monologue.

No business was conducted. It was announced that the Curtain Callers will give a performance for the public Feb. 26 when an evening of one act plays will be presented by the Drama Club of Circleville High School.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

A Firm Denial

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, my best friend applied for a job with the government in Washington, D.C. She said she needed a security clearance check for this job, so they gave her a lie detector test. All was fine until she was asked some extremely embarrassing questions about her sex life. She then became so shocked and flustered that she failed the test and lost the job opportunity. Abby, this girl is as normal and aboveboard as a girl can be. Is this form of questioning for a government job routine now?

ALSO SHOCKED

DEAR ALSO: John W. Macy, Jr., Chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, assures me that "No federal agency subject to civil service rules and regulations screens applicants in this manner. Only two agencies, both operating outside the civil service framework, use the lie detector (polygraph) in screening applicants. And they feel they must do this because of the top security nature of their work."

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago the mailman delivered a letter to our house, addressed to my mother. It was from a friend of many years. My mother was not at home. A few minutes later, the woman who had written the letter arrived, picked the letter up off the table, tore it up and walked off with the pieces, saying she was glad she got there in time as she had

Fingernails Require Proper Care

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

If you don't have a butler and an upstairs maid — and who does these days? — the problem of keeping your castle clean is in your hands. And it's hard on them.

Dunking the dishes can turn hands rough and red and make fingernails brittle. The cleaning fluid you use to remove everything from bubble gum to spaghetti spots can also soil your nails.

Lotion will help guard the beauty of your hands, but what can you apply to provide your nails with a protective barrier? The answer is, use nail polish!

While the polish is porous enough to permit nails to "breathe", it won't let harsh cleaning liquids pass through and rob the nails of the oils that keep them flexible.

Research studies show that nail polish has excellent protective qualities. In one survey made, 75.9 per cent of the housewives who did NOT use polish suffered from brittle nails, a complaint that bothered only 34.5 per cent of the women using nail polish.

Nail polish, needless to say, isn't a cure — all for brittle nails for they're caused by many things, including diet deficiencies, chronic diseases and allergies. But when brittleness is caused by exposure to harsh cleansers, nail polish can be a big help.

Incidentally, as a first step toward stronger nails, try using a nail hardener under nail polish.

When applying nail polish, keep beauty in mind. If your nails are short and stubby, apply the polish down the center of the nail, leaving a fine unpainted line at either side of the nail.

If nails are small, let them grow longer than average and cover the entire nail with polish.

Watching your budget? Then buy moderately priced polish. It will do the job prettily for you. Look, too, for polish in spill-proof bottles.

A once-a-week manicure with an occasional touch-up will keep your fingers in tip-top shape.

To do the job properly, you'll need polish remover, nail polish, cotton, emery board, orange stick, cuticle remover, manicure scissors, base coat and top coat.

Soak the cotton with polish remover and apply to the nail. Next, file nails from side to center with an emery board.

Apply cuticle remover with a piece of cotton wrapped around an orange stick. Gently push back the cuticle.

If you have any hangnails, clip them with manicure scissors. But don't cut your cuticle. Cutting makes it coarse and thick.

Wash hands with soap and water and dry thoroughly, pushing back the cuticle with a towel.

For a longer-lasting manicure, use a base coat. After it is dry, apply your polish, beginning on the sides, then filling in the center. With your thumb, remove a hair line of polish on the tip to prevent chipping.

Lastly, apply the top coat to the entire nail and under the tip.

FASHIONABLE COIFFURE — The "in" trend for evening is definitely for magnificent hairdos and for eye-catching ornaments. So if your life is socially inclined for evening change from a casual coiffure to a height-of-fashion style. Pictured above, back hair is swept high on the head to make a cascade of curls. Teasing creates height and spray holds the set.

16-Year-Old Ohio Girl Wins $2,000 in Bake-off

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kathy Lunsford, a 16-year-old Ohio girl who won the Pillsbury Co. Bake-Off's $2,000 junior division prize, says she'll use the money for college.

Kathy won first place with her recipe for "Mandarin Dream Pie," which takes only about 10 minutes to prepare. She says she first served it to her family in their Bolivar, Ohio, home.

"They thought it was delicious and I should enter the bake-off with it," she said. She had entered the baking contest twice before.

Kathy is a freshman at Tuscarawas Valley High School in Bolivar. She is active in the school band, chorus, 4-H club and school dramatics. Her curriculum does not include home economics.

She says she hopes to study history in college and become a history teacher.

Mandarin Dream Pie

1/2 cup butter
1 cup flour
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/8 teaspoon ginger
1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
3/4 cup milk
1 cup dairy sour cream

1 tablespoon prepared grated orange peel
3/4 ounce package instant vanilla pudding mix
1/2 cup orange marmalade
1 to 2 tablespoons water
1/2 cup well-drained mandarin orange segments

Melt butter in 11 x 7 inch pan. Add flour, sugar, ginger, and walnuts. Mix well. Bake at 350 for 10 to 12 minutes, stirring occasionally. Reserve 1/4 cup of crumb mixture for garnish; press remainder onto bottom and sides of 8-inch pie pan.

In small mixer bowl, combine milk, sour cream, orange peel and pudding mix. Mix at high speed of mixer about 30 seconds or until very thick. Pour into crumb crust. Chill.

Heat orange marmalade with water, stirring constantly, until marmalade melts. Arrange orange segments on filling. Spoon marmalade glaze over top. Sprinkle with reserve crumbs. Chill.

Tip: Vanilla filling may be prepared in a blender.

Two vary Eggs Benedict — that combination of toasted English muffins, ham, poached eggs and Hollandaise sauce — add broiled tomato halves.

Monday Club Entertained By CHS Curtain Callers

The Circleville High School Curtain Callers entertained members of Monday Club when they met in the high school cafeteria.

Ronald Mead, teacher of speech, drama and English at CHS, presented the organization composed of students of the high school. He spoke of their strong interest in drama and theatricals and stated that many have entered district as well as state competition.

Glenn Plum, student director of the organization, introduced Miss Elissa Evans, who gave a dramatic cutting from the play, "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder. Miss Linda Conrad presented a humorous cutting from the play, "Rehearsal".

Miss Susie Bennett gave a reading from "Sorry, Wrong Number", by Lucille Fletcher. Mr. Plum completed the program with a humorous monologue.

No business was conducted. It was announced that the Curtain Callers will give a performance for the public Feb. 26 when an evening of one act plays will be presented by the Drama Club of Circleville High School.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

A Firm Denial

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, my best friend applied for a job with the government in Washington, D.C. She said she needed a security clearance check for this job, so they gave her a lie detector test. All was fine until she was asked some extremely embarrassing questions about her sex life. She then became so shocked and flustered that she failed the test and lost the job opportunity. Abby, this girl is as normal and aboveboard as a girl can be. Is this form of questioning for a government job routine now?

ALSO SHOCKED
DEAR ALSO: John W. Macy, Jr., Chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, assures me that "No federal agency subject to civil service rules and regulations screens applicants in this manner. Only two agencies, both operating outside the civil service framework, use the lie detector (polygraph) in screening applicants. And they feel they must do this because of the top security nature of their work."

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago the mailman delivered a letter to our house, addressed to my mother. It was from a friend of many years. My mother was not at home. A few minutes later, the woman who had written the letter arrived, picked the letter up off the table, tore it up and walked off with the pieces, saying she was glad she got there in time as she had

Fingernails Require Proper Care

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

If you don't have a butler and an upstairs maid — and who does these days? — the problem of keeping your castle clean is in your hands. And it's hard on them.

Dunking the dishes can turn hands rough and red and make fingernails brittle. The cleaning fluid you use to remove everything from bubble gum to spaghetti spots can also soil your nails.

Lotion will help guard the beauty of your hands, but what can you apply to provide your nails with a protective barrier? The answer is, use nail polish!

While the polish is porous enough to permit nails to "breathe", it won't let harsh cleaning liquids pass through and rob the nails of the oils that keep them flexible.

Research studies show that nail polish has excellent protective qualities. In one survey made, 75.9 per cent of the housewives who did NOT use polish suffered from brittle nails, a complaint that bothered only 34.5 per cent of the women using nail polish.

Nail polish, needless to say, isn't a cure — all for brittle nails for they're caused by many things, including diet deficiencies, chronic diseases and allergies. But when brittleness is caused by exposure to harsh cleansers, nail polish can be a big help.

Incidentally, as a first step toward stronger nails, try using a nail hardener under nail polish.

When applying nail polish, keep beauty in mind. If your nails are short and stubby, apply the polish down the center of the nail, leaving a fine unpainted line at either side of the nail.

If nails are small, let them grow longer than average and cover the entire nail with polish.

Watching your budget? Then buy moderately priced polish. It will do the job prettily for you. Look, too, for polish in spill-proof bottles.

A once-a-week manicure with an occasional touch-up will keep your fingers in tip-top shape.

To do the job properly, you'll need polish remover, nail polish, cotton, emery board, orange stick, cuticle remover, manicure scissors, base coat and top coat.

Soak the cotton with polish remover and apply to the nail. Next, file nails from side to center with an emery board.

Apply cuticle remover with a piece of cotton wrapped around an orange stick. Gently push back the cuticle.

If you have any hangnails, clip them with manicure scissors. But don't cut your cuticle. Cutting makes it coarse and thick.

Wash hands with soap and water and dry thoroughly, pushing back the cuticle with a towel.

For a longer-lasting manicure, use a base coat. After it is dry, apply your polish, beginning on the sides, then filling in the center. With your thumb, remove a hair line of polish on the tip to prevent chipping.

Lastly, apply the top coat to the entire nail and under the tip.

FASHIONABLE COIFFURE — The "in" trend for evening is definitely for magnificent hairdos and for eye-catching ornaments. So if your life is socially inclined for evening change from a casual coiffure to a height-of-fashion style. Pictured above, back hair is swept high on the head to make a cascade of curls. Teasing creates height and spray holds the set.

Roundtown GC Holds White Elephant Sale

A white elephant sale was conducted when members of the Roundtown Garden Club met recently in the home of Mrs. William Blaney, Route 3. Mrs. Blaney acted as auctioneer for the sale.

Members answered roll call by naming a bird and describing its habits. Mrs. Clariol Sykes was a guest.

Mrs. Roger Hobbie, president, conducted the business meeting. A letter was read concerning the GCO Convention and the club was asked to contribute an item for the gift shop.

Mrs. Marvin Maxson gave a report on African violets and mentioned several tips on how to grow them successfully.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Harold Pontius.

Roasting several ribs of beef? At carving time, leave plenty of meat on the ribs. Spread the reserved ribs with prepared mustard, sprinkle with fine dry bread crumbs and broil until hot and brown. Served with a salad, the ribs will make a fine "second" meal the day after the beef is served.

The World Today

By NEIL GILBRIDE
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, fighting to stave off the threat of inflation, won't provide an expected boost in White House wage guideline in his economic message to Congress Thursday.

Although the labor movement doesn't like it, Johnson won't budge from the four-year-old 3.2 per cent guideline despite booming industrial production figures.

The guideline means that wage increases up to 3.2 per cent per year are noninflationary and okay with the White House. Thus, under the formula, a worker making $3 per hour could get a 9.6-cent hourly hike without incurring Johnson's displeasure.

Big labor, from AFL-CIO President George Meany on down, never has accepted the guideline, so what do union chieftains have to be mad about?

They think Johnson has abandoned the rules in failing to hike

the wage guideline to 3.4 or possibly 3.6 per cent on the basis of the government's own economic figures.

"They're just grabbing 3.2 per cent out of thin air without any economic justification at all," said one high union official.

The theory of the guideline is that productivity — the amount of goods a worker produces per hour — has been rising 3.2 per cent a year. So industry can grant that much in wage increases without boosting prices.

Labor, and many economists, had expected an increase because the nation's industrial production rose more rapidly than expected in 1965.

One member of the President's Economic Advisory Council, which originally formulated the wage-price guidelines, hinted strongly months ago that an increase to at least 3.4 per cent might be in the cards this year.

White House economists reportedly now argue that any boost in the wage guideline would have an inflationary effect, even if government figures do indicate some justification for an increase.

Even more worrisome to top labor leaders — briefed in advance of Johnson's economic message — is the hint of wage controls if signs of inflation increase.

The economic message will propose no such controls, but high administration officials mentioned the subject at the briefing.

"We do not believe there is any immediate threat of inflation so serious as to warrant extraordinary measures," Meany said after the session.

But if the demands of Vietnam require controls, Meany added, they should be applied across the board to all costs, prices, profits and wages.

Some labor spokesmen believe Johnson has been using the "suggested" guidelines as almost a substitute for mandatory controls.

Johnson used the wage-price guidelines, for instance, to hold steelworkers' wage demands to 3.2 per cent, and more recently pressured the steel industry to roll back a $5-per-ton price increase to $2.75.

Johnson and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz sharply transit strike settlement for exceeding the guideline. Federal sources estimated the increase at about 4.6 per cent.

The guidelines do leave room for maneuvering in particular industries where productivity or wage increases differ from the national average.

But both labor and industry have at times criticized the guidelines for creating inflexibility at the bargaining table.

"The guidelines have produced strikes that wouldn't have occurred otherwise," said one labor spokesman.

Dial-Your-Congressman Plan Used by Tennessean

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grocer seeking a small business loan. A dietitian who slipped on the kitchen floor. A youth with a yen to become a biologist.

Via long distance, all these poured their woes or ambitions into the ear of freshman Rep. George W. Grider, D-Tenn., Monday as he inaugurated a kind of Dial-your-Congressman system.

From 3 to 5 p.m. on Mondays, any constituent with a problem can drop by Grider's Memphis office and speak direct to the congressman.

"The government simply won't work," he says, "unless Congress members act as conduits for citizens to bring their absolutely legitimate problems to the attention of the proper agencies."

First of the real callers was a dietitian who got to the Memphis office two hours early, to make sure she was first on the phone.

Her story: She slipped on the kitchen floor at Shelby County Hospital and hurt herself. And, would you believe it, she was discharged from her job while convalescing.

"Now, of course," Grider said, "the Shelby County Hospital is out of my jurisdiction, but I can do something. I'll write Commissioner Danny Mitchell a letter. They don't have a right to discharge you if you're injured on the job."

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1966. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1830, Daniel Webster made his reply to Robert Payne of South Carolina before a crowded Senate. Denying the right of any state to nullify an act of Congress, Webster cried, "Liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable."

On this date In 1837, Michigan was admitted to the Union as the 26th state.

In 1861, Louisiana adopted an ordinance of secession.

In 1934, Germany and Poland signed a 10-year nonaggression treaty.

In 1942, U.S. troops landed in Northern Ireland, the first American force to arrive in Europe in World War II.

In 1945, forces led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur captured Clark Field on Luzon Island in the Philippines.

How To File Your 1965 Return

Joint Income Tax Report Can Yield Lowest Rate for Household Heads

EDITOR'S NOTE — If a couple files a joint income tax return, the lowest rate applies. Also, individuals who qualify as heads of households get a lower rate than if they file as single persons. This article, third of a series of five, goes into such matters.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are a few rules on the 1965 income tax returns of married couples and those individuals who get a tax break if they qualify as head of household or surviving spouse.

A husband and wife almost always save by filing a joint return, rather than separately. To be joint, a return must be signed by both. A wife is not a dependent for income tax purposes. The rules on wives and dependents are not the same.

You were considered married or divorced for all of 1965 if you were married or divorced as late as last Dec. 31. You get no exemption for a wife divorced in 1965 even though you paid more than half her support.

Anyone under 65 filing a return gets a $600 exemption for himself — $1,200 if 65 or older — plus $600 if blind. The same exemptions apply to a wife if she files jointly with you, whether or not she had income, or, if she had none, fails to file jointly.

A couple filing jointly gets the lowest tax rate. A husband filing separately, because his wife failed to sign with him, gets the exemption for her but is hit with a higher tax rate.

If your wife had 1965 income no matter how small, you cannot claim her exemption unless she files jointly with you and reports the income. If it was $600 or more, she would, like everyone else, have to file a return.

She could do it jointly with you or separately. If separately, she'd take her own exemption. But if her income was less than $600, which wouldn't require a return and she failed to file jointly with you, you'd be wasting part of the $600 exemption you could have had.

Everyone filing a return gets a standard deduction for personal expenses without itemizing to prove them. If your expenses exceeded the standard, you can claim them fully but only by itemizing.

There are two standard deductions: the 10 per cent standard and the minimum standard. The two standards, along with the tax tables and the tax-rate schedules for determining your tax, were explained in No. 2 in this series.

But, when a married couple files separate returns, if one uses the 10 per cent standard deduction, both must; if one uses the minimum standard, both must; if one itemizes, both must.

Certain widows and widowers get a lower tax rate if they can qualify as surviving spouse:

If your husband or wife died in 1965, you can generally claim a $600 exemption for him or her on your return, if you did not remarry in 1965. You file it as a joint return, reporting any 1965 income the deceased had, and using tax table or tax rate schedule No. 2, both of which have the lowest tax rate.

Further, if you meet the following conditions, you can still use table B or schedule No. 2 even though your wife or husband died in 1964 or 1963:

You must have been entitled to file a joint return with him or her for the year of death; you have not remarried; you have a child or stepchild who qualifies as your dependent; and you furnish over half the cost of your home which is the principal residence of your child or stepchild.

If you meet those conditions you can use table or schedule No. 2, listing your own income, exemptions and deductions. But — you cannot claim an exemption for a husband or wife who died in 1964 or 1963.

Individuals who can qualify as head of household get a lower tax rate than allowed if they had to file as single persons. You qualify if:

You were unmarried or legally separated at the end of 1965 or were married by the end of the year to someone who for part of the year was a nonresident alien; you must have furnished over half the cost of your home which was the main residence for the year for yourself and your unmarried child, stepchild or grandchild, even though not a dependent of yours, or of any relative you can claim as a dependent or, if you paid more than half the cost of maintaining a home for your mother or father, if either can qualify as your dependent.

You cannot claim you maintained a home for a parent if you were paying for him or her in a home for the aged. But, if you meet qualifications listed above, you can use tax table B or tax rate schedule No. 3.

Next: Claiming dependents.

Jobless Rate Declines in 9 Counties

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A report on employment conditions in a nine-county area of Champaign, Clinton, Darke, Erie, Huron, Knox, Logan, Seneca and Van Wert counties was issued Tuesday showing unemployment averaged 2.8 per cent in December 1965.

Willard P. Dudley, administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, said the December rate compared with 4.7 per cent for the same period in 1963.

The survey figures for the counties, showing, in order, the civilian labor force, employment unemployment and unemployment rate were:

Champaign—9,000 - 8,750-250-2.8 per cent; Clinton—10,850-10,600-250-2.3 per cent; Darke—14,450-14,050-400 - 2.8 per cent; Erie—27,800-26,900-900 - 3.2 per cent; Huron—18,300 - 17,800-500-2.7 per cent; Knox—15,050-14,650-400-2.7 per cent; Logan—19,750-19,450-300-2.8 per cent; Seneca—23,100-22,550-550-2.4 per cent; Van Wert 9,800-9,450-350-3.6 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, fighting to stave off the threat of inflation, won't provide an expected boost in White House wage guideline in his economic message to Congress Thursday.

Although the labor movement doesn't like it, Johnson won't budge from the four-year-old 3.2 per cent guideline despite booming industrial production figures.

The guideline means that wage increases up to 3.2 per cent per year are noninflationary and okay with the White House. Thus, under the formula, a worker making $3 per hour could get a 9.6-cent hourly hike without incurring Johnson's displeasure.

Big labor, from AFL-CIO President George Meany on down, never has accepted the guideline, so what do union chieftains have to be mad about?

They think Johnson has abandoned the rules in failing to hike

the wage guideline to 3.4 or possibly 3.6 per cent on the basis of the government's own economic figures.

"They're just grabbing 3.2 per cent out of thin air without any economic justification at all," said one high union official.

The theory of the guideline is that productivity — the amount of goods a worker produces per hour — has been rising 3.2 per cent a year. So industry can grant that much in wage increases without boosting prices.

Labor, and many economists, had expected an increase because the nation's industrial production rose more rapidly than expected in 1965.

One member of the President's Economic Advisory Council, which originally formulated the wage-price guidelines, hinted strongly months ago that an increase to at least 3.4 per cent might be in the cards this year.

White House economists reportedly now argue that any boost in the wage guideline would have an inflationary effect, even if government figures do indicate some justification for an increase.

Even more worrisome to top labor leaders — briefed in advance of Johnson's economic message — is the hint of wage controls if signs of inflation increase.

The economic message will propose no such controls, but high administration officials mentioned the subject at the briefing.

"We do not believe there is any immediate threat of inflation so serious as to warrant extraordinary measures," Meany said after the session.

But if the demands of Viet Nam require controls, Meany added, they should be applied across the board to all costs, prices, profits and wages.

Some labor spokesmen believe Johnson has been using the "suggested" guidelines as almost a substitute for mandatory controls.

Johnson used the wage-price guidelines, for instance, to hold steelworkers' wage demands to 3.2 per cent, and more recently pressured the steel industry to roll back a $5-per-ton price increase to $2.75.

Johnson and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz sharply transit strike settlement for exceeding the guideline. Federal sources estimated the increase at about 4.6 per cent.

The guidelines do leave room for maneuvering in particular industries where productivity or wage increases differ from the national average.

But both labor and industry have at times criticized the guidelines for creating inflexibility at the bargaining table.

"The guidelines have produced strikes that wouldn't have occurred otherwise," said one labor spokesman.

Dial-Your-Congressman Plan Used by Tennessean

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grocer seeking a small business loan. A dietitian who slipped on the kitchen floor. A youth with a yen to become a biologist.

Via long distance, all these poured their woes or ambitions into the ear of freshman Rep. George W. Grider, D-Tenn., Monday as he inaugurated a kind of Dial-your-Congressman system.

From 3 to 5 p.m. on Mondays, any constituent with a problem can drop by Grider's Memphis office and speak direct to the congressman.

"The government simply won't work," he says, "unless Congress members act as conduits for citizens to bring their absolutely legitimate problems to the attention of the proper agencies."

First of the real callers was a dietitian who got to the Memphis office two hours early, to make sure she was first on the phone.

Her story: She slipped on the kitchen floor at Shelby County Hospital and hurt herself. And, would you believe it, she was discharged from her job while convalescing.

"Now, of course," Grider said, "the Shelby County Hospital is out of my jurisdiction, but I can do something. I'll write Commissioner Danny Mitchell a letter. They don't have a right to discharge you if you're injured on the job."

The congressman said to the next caller:

"Hi, David, I hear it's about to snow and sleet in Memphis."

The caller was David Neely, a graduate of the Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial College, who wants to take graduate courses in biology. He was promised all information on college loans, and —

"When you come up here to visit Howard University, be sure to drop by the office. We'll call up Howard."

A grocer in quest of loan assistance also got encouraging words.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1966. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1830, Daniel Webster made his reply to Robert Payne of South Carolina before a crowded Senate. Denying the right of any state to nullify an act of Congress, Webster cried, "Liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable."

On this date

In 1837, Michigan was admitted to the Union as the 26th state.

In 1861, Louisiana adopted an ordinance of secession.

In 1934, Germany and Poland signed a 10-year nonaggression treaty.

In 1942, U.S. troops landed in Northern Ireland, the first American force to arrive in Europe in World War II.

In 1945, forces led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur captured Clark Field on Luzon Island in the Philippines.

Five years ago — The U. S. Navy agreed to a conference with Henrique Galvao aboard the cruise ship Santa Maria which Galvao and Portuguese and Spanish political exiles had captured in the Caribbean.

One year ago — The body of Winston Churchill was brought to Westminster Hall to lie in state until the funeral in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Ex-Youngstown Solon Ruled Dope Addict

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The courts here committed John J. Tobin, 37, former Youngstown, Ohio, city councilman-elect convicted Dec. 20 of forgery, grand theft and burglary, to the Corona, Calif., rehabilitation center Tuesday as a narcotics addict.

How To File Your 1965 Return

Joint Income Tax Report Can Yield Lowest Rate for Household Heads

EDITOR'S NOTE — If a couple files a joint income tax return, the lowest rate applies. Also, individuals who qualify as heads of households get a lower rate than if they file as single persons. This article, third of a series of five, goes into such matters.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are a few rules on the 1965 income tax returns of married couples and those individuals who get a tax break if they qualify as head of household or surviving spouse.

A husband and wife almost always save by filing a joint return, rather than separately. To be joint, a return must be signed by both. A wife is not a dependent for income tax purposes. The rules on wives and dependents are not the same.

You were considered married or divorced for all of 1965 if you were married or divorced as late as last Dec. 31. You get no exemption for a wife divorced in 1965 even though you paid more than half her support.

Anyone under 65 filing a return gets a $600 exemption for himself — $1,200 if 65 or older — plus $600 if blind. The same exemptions apply to a wife if she files jointly with you, whether or not she had income, or, if she had none, fails to file jointly.

A couple filing jointly gets the lowest tax rate. A husband filing separately, because his wife failed to sign with him, gets the exemption for her but is hit with a higher tax rate.

If your wife had 1965 income no matter how small, you cannot claim her exemption unless she files jointly with you and reports the income. If it was $600 or more, she would, like everyone else, have to file a return.

She could do it jointly with you or separately. If separately, she'd take her own exemption. But if her income was less than $600, which wouldn't require a return and she failed to file jointly with you, you'd be wasting part of the $600 exemption you could have had.

Everyone filing a return gets a standard deduction for personal expenses without itemizing to prove them. If your expenses exceeded the standard, you can claim them fully but only by itemizing.

There are two standard deductions: the 10 per cent standard and the minimum standard. The two standards, along with the tax tables and the tax-rate schedules for determining your tax, were explained in No. 2 in this series.

But, when a married couple files separate returns, if one uses the 10 per cent standard deduction, both must; if one uses the minimum standard, both must; if one itemizes, both must.

Certain widows and widowers get a lower tax rate if they can qualify as surviving spouse:

If your husband or wife died in 1965, you can generally claim a $600 exemption for him or her on your return, if you did not remarry in 1965. You file it as a joint return, reporting any 1965 income the deceased had, and using tax table or tax rate schedule No. 2, both of which have the lowest tax rate.

Further, if you meet the following conditions, you can still use table B or schedule No. 2 even though your wife or husband died in 1964 or 1963:

You must have been entitled to file a joint return with him or her for the year of death; you have not remarried; you have a child or stepchild who qualifies as your dependent; and you furnish over half the cost of your home which is the principal residence of your child or stepchild.

If you meet those conditions you can use table or schedule No. 2, listing your own income, exemptions and deductions. But — you cannot claim an exemption for a husband or wife who died in 1964 or 1963.

Individuals who can qualify as head of household get a lower tax rate than allowed if they had to file as single persons. You qualify if:

You were unmarried or legally separated at the end of 1965 or were married by the end of the year to someone who for part of the year was a nonresident alien; you must have furnished over half the cost of your home which was the main residence for the year for yourself and your unmarried child, stepchild or grandchild, even though not a dependent of yours, or of any relative you can claim as a dependent or, if you paid more than half the cost of maintaining a home for your mother or father, if either can qualify as your dependent.

You cannot claim you maintained a home for a parent if you were paying for him or her in a home for the aged. But, if you meet qualifications listed above, you can use tax table B or tax rate schedule No. 3.

Next: Claiming dependents.

Jobless Rate Declines in 9 Counties

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A report on employment conditions in a nine-county area of Champaign, Clinton, Darke, Erie, Huron, Knox, Logan, Seneca and Van Wert counties was issued Tuesday showing unemployment averaged 2.8 per cent in December 1965.

Willard P. Dudley, administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, said the December rate compared with 4.7 per cent for the same period in 1963.

The survey figures for the counties, showing, in order, the civilian labor force, employment unemployment and unemployment rate were:

Champaign—9,000 - 8,750-250-2.8 per cent; Clinton—10,850-10,600-250-2.3 per cent; Darke—14,450-14,050-400 - 2.8 per cent; Erie—27,800-26,900-900 - 3.2 per cent; Huron—18,300 - 17,800-500-2.7 per cent; Knox—15,050-14,650-400-2.7 per cent; Logan—19,750-19,450-300-2.8 per cent; Seneca — 23,100-22,550-550-2.4 per cent; Van Wert 9,800-9,450-350-3.6 per cent.

Election in Britain Thursday Seen Crucial

HULL, England (AP) — Two election posters peer out from Mr. and Mrs. Barry Nicholson's third-floor walkup apartment across the street from local Labor party headquarters.

In the living room window, Nicholson's poster reads: "Kevin McNamara — vote Labor."

Mrs. Nicholson's poster shouts back from the kitchen window: "Vote Richard Gott — end the war in Viet Nam."

Nicholson, a lab technician at Hull University, told a reporter: "We both like Gott. But I don't like his tactics, and she does. He may bring down the government. We're split."

The Nicholsons' domestic political disagreement, if multiplied by only a few hundred of Hull's voters, could indeed bring an end to Britain's Labor government. A Labor defeat in Thursday's special parliamentary election would send Prime Minister Harold Wilson's House of Commons majority down to the absolute minimum of one vote and might force a new general election.

It also would send Conservative morale skyrocketing after a winter of party feuds.

Henry Solomons, the Labor member who died last November, wrested the Hull seat from the Conservatives at the last election by a margin of 1,181 votes. That margin now is hanging by a thread, which could be snapped by such imponderables as a snowstorm on polling day, a 15 per cent rise in local property taxes announced only this week, or the immediately recognizable red beard of Richard Gott.

Gott, 27, a London journalist, has quit the Labor party to run as a candidate of a group calling itself the Radical Alliance, and he doesn't care if he shaves away enough Labor votes to bring Labor down.

He acknowledges a political kinship with the peace demonstrators in the United States, and his single platform plank is a protest against Wilson's support for U.S. policy in Viet Nam. Only the voting will tell how many supporters Gott has unearthed behind smoke-blackened brick facades of the dock and transport workers' houses.

He thinks there may be as many as a thousand, which would satisfy Gott and probably ruin Labor.

Hull has a radical tradition, dating from its opposition to the king in the 17th century civil war. It was prominent in the 19th century campaign against slavery and for a hundred years it has been a center of militant unionism. Gott thus is plowing fertile ground.

While oldsters and confirmed Labor voters regard him as something between a nuisance and a menace, he seems to be finding a sympathetic audience among women and the young. Some, like Nicholson, are not ready to vote against Labor.

Rural Area Poverty War Is Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed to Congress Tuesday a many-sided program to fight poverty in rural areas.

In a special message, Johnson announced he will soon appoint a commission on rural poverty charged with making recommendations to him within a year on means of extending the nation's abundance to poverty-ridden country areas.

Meantime, he proposed an extensive planning program, with federal aid and including pilot projects in an unspecified number of rural areas.

In the pilot counties, Johnson said, government departments, especially labor, welfare and agriculture, would join in a concerted effort to bring social services to poor rural communities.

Johnson proposed creation of community development districts and federal grants for:

1. Districtwide planning of public services and governmental functions where other federal planning assistance is not available.

2. Districtwide coordination of local planning activities with federal programs and private initiative, in a comprehensive attack on rural community problems.

The secretary of agriculture would certify areas meeting requirements for designation as community development districts.

Oklahoma Collector Buys Churchill Auto

LONDON (AP) — An Oklahoma automobile collector has paid $6,000 for a Humber limousine that belonged to the late Sir Winston Churchill.

The new owner is Arthur G. Hayes of Muskogee. He plans to add the 12-year-old car to the Churchilliana on display in America.

But they may abstain. One housewife told Gott: "I'm so red I'm infrared. We are fed up with the government. It's not really Labor at all."

Labor's candidate, Kevin McNamara, 31, a Hull law instructor with iron-gray hair and a reticent manner, follows the party line to the letter and stays clear of emotional debate on Viet Nam.

He has refused even to talk about Gott and has campaigned solely on Labor's long-range domestic policy of improved welfare, voluntary wage and price restraint, and national economic planning.

This presents its own problems, especially when Toby Jessel, the Conservative candidate, assails Labor for rising taxes and prices. Jessel's line is that Hull can become Britain's gateway to Europe if the nation follows the Conservative lead and makes another bid to enter the European Common Market.

The Liberal candidate, Laurie

Millward, a housewife and Hull city councillor, follows her own party's pro-Europe program. She demands more roads and industrial development for Hull, which is out in East Yorkshire on the Humber estuary and literally at the end of the railroad line.

These domestic questions probably will have the most influence on the mass of voters who have been turning up for the campaign rallies in record crowds.

The combination of high interest, typical issues and hunger on the left makes this a test-tube election for Britain.

Although Labor started its campaign late — some voters even thought Gott was the regular Labor candidate at first — it has now organized its canvassers and combed the district twice over for supporters.

Jessel, 31, a London businessman and former navy officer, runs from house to house shaking as many hands as he can while a team of six pretty girls goes on ahead to get the voters on their doorsteps. His strategy is to make himself known to every potential Conservative voter and then hold on to them and coast to victory while Labor splits.

Two unknowns also are running. They are Kelvin Woodburn, the World Government candidate; and Russell Eckley, who claims from the "Legions of God." Even Eckley's candidacy could make a difference. He is alphabetically first on the ballot and that's usually worth at least 50 to 100 votes.

Senate Split On Issue of New Bombing

The two women senators, Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, and Maurine B. Neuberger, D-Ore., said they are opposed to renewing bombings now and against widening their scope if they are resumed.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said he wants to prolong the pause in attacks in the hope that "we can find some point of negotiation." He said he would not favor expansion to include targets near Hanoi or Haiphong.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he would not resume bombings unless Communist countries made it clear they wanted to fight the war to a finish.

"If there is a likelihood of a slowdown of the fighting and possibility of restoring any peace to Southeast Asia, I would not resume bombings," he said. "I would not expand the bombings to the Hanoi and Haiphong areas unless I wanted to lose Saigon. They are counter-attacks."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said in a statement that resumption of bombing in North Viet Nam "will lose, at least for the present, the chance to negotiate."

"I do not believe that we will make any critical point, solve any dilemma or move along the way to an honorable settlement now by resumed or by larger bombing," he said.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that in view of the testimony Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "I do not think that the administration has demonstrated that in the past bombing has particularly helped the cause."

It was a matter of mixed emotions for Sen. B. Everett Jordan D-N.C., who said:

"I feel we should do everything we can to make every effort to get those people to the peace table. If they don't agree soon I guess we'll have to resume the bombing, but I'd like to hold off a little longer." He added he would leave any decision on expansion of targets to military leaders.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., said he is against renewing bombing attacks because he wants to see a naval blockade tried first.

Most of those who favor resumption of bombings based their position on the belief that, in the absence of any Communist response to peace overtures, such action is inevitable.

In this group, as well as among some of those who want a longer pause in air attacks, there is a strong feeling that if the bombings are resumed they should be directed at prime military targets.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the bombing of North Viet Nam has been ineffective. He said attacks should be resumed to hit prime military targets. Symington, who visited Asia in December, called for fuller use of naval power and for elimination of Communist sanctuaries in Laos and Cambodia.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that "in view of the fact that Hanoi has made no response to President Johnson's peace overtures, the bombing of North Viet Nam will inevitably be resumed — the timing, of course, is up to the President."

A number of senators declined to comment on the questions and one of them, Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., assailed polls on such matters. He said it was unimportant how many members thought bombing should be resumed.

"What is important," he said, "is our purpose, our goal. The question of bombing North Vietnamese targets, or even to expand our target selection to include industrial or military targets in the Hanoi - Haiphong complex, cannot be separated from the over-all policy of our government."

"Viet Nam is a complex, gray area of decision, not conveniently black and white, nor either-or and the decisions must be based on goals and needs and knowledge and not on a newspaper story saying 51 senators favor bombing Hanoi or 74 per cent of the people on Main Street think we should invade the North."

The Circleville Herald, Wed. Jan. 26, 1966 11

Water and Sewage Projects Outlined in Yearly Report

Steps leading to the installation of a new 20-inch well and erection of equipment for chemical treatment of waste were key operational factors in 1965 for Circleville's Department of Water and Sewage.

The new water source, known as Well No. 2, was drilled at the Waterworks site west of the city. The project is now nearing completion.

The chemical treatment approach was brought under study in 1964 in a continued effort to comply with state standards in disposing of waste. The procedure was deemed far less expensive than construction of a new disposal facility or enlargement of the present plant.

Permits to dump treated waste into the Scioto River are granted periodically by the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board. The approval granted for this year includes conditions calling for the city to install equipment necessary for utilizing the chemical treatment system, along with efforts directed toward more adequate sludge disposal.

IMMEDIATE steps were taken to comply with the state requirements. This includes plans to remove some of the accumulated sludge in the lagoon area and other improvements there.

This and other information on the city's two utility functions was included in a yearly operational rundown presented to City Council by Ervin F. Leist, public utilities manager. It constitutes the 20th annual report for the division of water and the 26th annual report on the division of sewage treatment.

The report shows the division of water had operating revenues of $184,805.14 in 1965, including $165,747.92 in metered water sales. Total operating revenue deductions were $151,518.12.

The water division's total balance in all funds as of Dec. 31, 1965, amounted to $223,176.40. These funds include waterworks operating, waterworks mortgage revenue and bond retirement, waterworks improvement, depositors trust and waterworks general obligation bond retirement.

Division of sewage total receipts and balance were listed at $97,497.12, including $51,715.13 in receipts for the year and a balance of $45,781.99 at the end of 1964.

Sewage division expenditures amounted to $69,300.86, leaving a balance of $28,196.26 as of Dec. 31, 1965.

THE ANNUAL report showed that 306,319,000 gallons of water were pumped during 1965. This compares to 305,498,000 gallons in 1964.

Total pumpage in 1965 averaged out at 25,527,000 gallons per month and 839,000 per day.

Maximum usage month was July when 30,424,000 gallons were metered. The minimum was February with 21,552,000 gallons.

Highest consumption day was June 28 when 1,370,000 gallons were checked out. The minimum day was April 18 when 585,000 gallons were used.

Additional information on the division of water listed the net number of new accounts at 116, increasing the city's total to 3,735. Fourteen fire hydrants were added to the system and six were repaired.

In other yearly activity, 6,534 feet of water main extensions were added. All but 400 feet was replaced by real estate developers under the supervision and inspection of the division of water.

MANAGER Leist noted that the Circleville water distribution function is made up of 36.39 miles of pipe. This system includes 268 control valves, 276 hydrants and 3,735 service connections.

The utilities head also noted that the city's sewage disposal permit from the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board expires Sept. 15 of this year. He said efforts will be made to comply with conditions set down by the state panel.

EXTRA BEATS

Q. During a recent examination the company doctor said I had extra heart beats. He indicated that this might be due to drinking coffee or smoking but didn't say whether the condition was harmful. Is it?

A. Extra beats (extrasystoles) are generally not harmful in otherwise healthy persons. Even so, it might be wise to avoid coffee and/or tobacco.

SOUR STOMACH

Q. If you drink milk and then almost immediately drink fruit juice will this cause the stomach to sour?

A. No. When milk reaches the stomach it is normally curdled by an enzyme called rennin. This is the first step in the process of digestion and is not affected by other foods eaten at the same time.

FISSURE OR FISTULA

Q. What is the difference between an anal fissure and an anal fistula?

A. A fissure is a slit-like, elongated, shallow ulcer. A fistula is a canal or tube-like abscess. Anal fissures often become infected, and burrowing of the infection may result in formation of a fistula.

Ford sales are booming! One reason—engineering magic like this:

New stereo tape player option with easy-loading cartridges. ■ New station wagon Magic Door—swings out like a door for people and down like a tailgate for cargo. ■ New automatic speed control option. ■ A ride so quiet that owners of European luxury cars — from a handcrafted Jaguar to a $14,000 Mercedes — have said, after a demonstration ride in a Ford XL or LTD, that it was even quieter than their custom-built cars. ■ Quiet-test a '66 Ford for yourself.

One-Legged Skater Back in Competition

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — Even though she has only one leg, 13-year-old Kathy Waite hopes to win Oregon's roller-skating championship again.

Kathy won the title last year on two legs, but since then one of her legs was amputated. Three weeks after the operation, she was back on the rink, using crutches.

When a news story appeared that she would return to competitive skating, she received 300 letters.

Among them were donations totaling $558 with which she plans to buy an artificial leg.

members and others.

The Cincinnati CAC, local arm of the federal antipoverty program, announced plans Monday to spend $36,000 a year to improve public relations.

Tuesday, Willis D. Gradison Jr., an unpaid commission member, said he resigned because he could not be a party "to wasteful expenditure of public funds."

"There is no evidence that this ($36,000) will directly or indirectly be of assistance to the poor in our community," Gradison, a city councilman, said in a letter to Dr. Henry Ryder, CAC president.

"I believe that the needs of the poor should come first—before self-serving public relations activities, and I certainly would hope that the commission would see fit to reconsider its vote," Gradison added.

The CAC voted 11-7 to spend $10,000-$12,000 a year for a community information director; $6,000-$7,000 for a staff writer; $7.50 an hour for 100 hours' work for a photographer, and $5,000-$6,000 for an office secretary.

Thomas A. Luken, also a councilman and commission member, said he would ask the CAC to reconsider its decision. The program still has to be approved by the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

"The whole idea of a governmental unit having a high paid PR person to dish out handouts is dangerous," Luken said. Ryder said he knew initial reaction was not good. But he said he felt it would help in the long run because "the more people know about us, the more it will increase their understanding of what we are trying to do."

Ryder said the $36,000 is partly needed to tell the poor that services are available to them. "If we didn't have communications we wouldn't get to first base."

Senate Split On Issue of New Bombing

The two women senators, Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, and Maurine B. Neuberger, D-Ore., said they are opposed to renewing bombings now and against widening their scope if they are resumed.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said he wants to prolong the pause in attacks in the hope that "we can find some point of negotiation." He said he would not favor expansion to include targets near Hanoi or Haiphong.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he would not resume bombings unless Communist countries made it clear they wanted to fight the war to a finish.

"If there is a likelihood of a slowdown of the fighting and possibility of restoring any peace to Southeast Asia, I would not resume bombings," he said. "I would not expand the bombings to the Hanoi and Haiphong areas unless I wanted to lose Saigon. They are counter-hostages."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said in a statement that resumption of bombing in North Viet Nam "will lose, at least for the present, the chance to negotiate."

"I do not believe that we will make any critical point, solve any dilemma or move along the way to an honorable settlement now by resumed or by larger bombing," he said.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that in view of the testimony Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "I do not think that the administration has demonstrated that in the past bombing has particularly helped the cause."

It was a matter of mixed emotions for Sen. B. Everett Jordan D.N.C., who said:

"I feel we should do everything we can to make every effort to get those people to the peace table. If they don't agree soon I guess we'll have to resume the bombing, but I'd like to hold off a little longer." He added he would leave any decision on expansion of targets to military leaders.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., said he is against renewing bombing attacks because he wants to see a naval blockade tried first.

Most of those who favor resumption of bombings based their position on the belief that, in the absence of any Communist response to peace overtures, such action is inevitable.

In this group, as well as among some of those who want a longer pause in air attacks, there is a strong feeling that if the bombings are resumed they should be directed at prime military targets.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the bombing of North Viet Nam has been ineffective. He said attacks should be resumed to hit prime military targets. Symington, who visited Asia in December, called for fuller use of naval power and for elimination of Communist sanctuaries in Laos and Cambodia.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that "in view of the fact that Hanoi has made no response to President Johnson's peace overtures, the bombing of North Viet Nam will inevitably be resumed — the timing, of course, is up to the President."

A number of senators declined to comment on the questions and one of them, Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., assailed polls on such matters. He said it was unimportant how many members thought bombing should be resumed.

"What is important," he said, "is our purpose, our goal. The question of bombing North Vietnamese targets, or even to expand our target selection to include industrial or military targets in the Hanoi - Haiphong complex, cannot be separated from the over-all policy of our government."

"Viet Nam is a complex, gray area of decision, not conveniently black and white, nor either-or and the decisions must be based on goals and needs and knowledge and not on a news-

Water and Sewage Projects Outlined in Yearly Report

Steps leading to the installation of a new 20-inch well and erection of equipment for chemical treatment of waste were key operational factors in 1965 for Circleville's Department of Water and Sewage.

The new water source, known as Well No. 2, was drilled at the Waterworks site west of the city. The project is now nearing completion.

The chemical treatment approach was brought under study in 1964 in a continued effort to comply with state standards in disposing of waste. The procedure was deemed far less expensive than construction of a new disposal facility or enlargement of the present plant.

Permits to dump treated waste into the Scioto River are granted periodically by the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board. The approval granted for this year includes conditions calling for the city to install equipment necessary for utilizing the chemical treatment system, along with efforts directed toward more adequate sludge disposal.

IMMEDIATE steps were taken to comply with the state requirements. This includes plans to remove some of the accumulated sludge in the lagoon area and other improvements there.

This and other information on the city's two utility functions was included in a yearly operational rundown presented to City Council by Ervin F. Leist, public utilities manager. It constitutes the 20th annual report for the division of water and the 26th annual report on the division of sewage treatment.

The report shows the division of water had operating revenues of $184,805.14 in 1965, including $165,747.92 in metered water sales. Total operating revenue deductions were $151,518.12.

The water division's total balance in all funds as of Dec. 31, 1965, amounted to $223,176.40. These funds include waterworks operating, waterworks mortgage revenue and bond retirement, waterworks improvement, depositors trust and waterworks general obligation bond retirement.

Division of sewage total receipts and balance were listed at $97,497.12, including $51,715.13 in receipts for the year and a balance of $45,781.99 at the end of 1964.

Sewage division expenditures amounted to $69,300.86, leaving a balance of $28,196.26 as of Dec. 31, 1965.

THE ANNUAL report showed that 306,319,000 gallons of water were pumped during 1965. This compares to 305,498,000 gallons in 1964.

Total pumpage in 1965 averaged out at 25,527,000 gallons per month and $39,000 per day.

Maximum usage month was July when 30,424,000 gallons were metered. The minimum was February with 21,552,000 gallons.

Highest consumption day was June 28 when 1,370,000 gallons were checked out. The minimum day was April 18 when 585,000 gallons were used.

Additional information on the division of water listed the net number of new accounts at 116, increasing the city's total to 3,735. Fourteen fire hydrants were added to the system and six were repaired.

In other yearly activity, 6,534 feet of water main extensions were added. All but 400 feet was replaced by real estate developers under the supervision and inspection of the division of water.

Governor's Daughter Bears 9-Pound Son

MANAGER Leist noted that the Circleville water distribution function is made up of 36.39 miles of pipe. This system includes 268 control valves, 276 hydrants and 3,735 service connections.

The utilities head also noted that the city's sewage disposal permit from the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board expires Sept. 15 of this year. He said efforts will be made to comply with conditions set down by the state panel.

EXTRA BEATS

Q. During a recent examination the company doctor said I had extra heart beats. He indicated that this might be due to drinking coffee or smoking but didn't say whether the condition was harmful. Is it?

A. Extra beats (extrasystoles) are generally not harmful in otherwise healthy persons. Even so, it might be wise to avoid coffee and/or tobacco.

SOUR STOMACH

Q. If you drink milk and then almost immediately drink fruit juice will this cause the stomach to sour?

A. No. When milk reaches the stomach it is normally curdled by an enzyme called rennin. This is the first step in the process of digestion and is not affected by other foods eaten at the same time.

FISSURE OR FISTULA

Q. What is the difference between an anal fissure and an anal fistula?

A. A fissure is a slit-like, elongated, shallow ulcer. A fistula is a canal or tube-like abscess. Anal fissures often become infected, and burrowing of the infection may result in formation of a fistula.

B&O Brakeman Sues Firm for $225,000

CINCINNATI (AP)—Alvin F. Flaig of Hamilton is suing the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for $225,000 damages for a back injury he allegedly suffered in an accident Jan. 27, 1963.

In his suit filed Tuesday in U. S. District Court here, Flaig said he was a brakeman for the railroad when he disembarked from a slow-moving car and he slipped and fell on a loading dock at Fairfield.

He claims the railroad should have known the dock was unsafe because of an accumulation of oil and other debris.

Woman Ruled Killed By Fire in Kitchen

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 70-year-old widow found dead in her apartment in Shaker Heights Tuesday apparently burned to death, police reported.

The body of Mrs. Moses B. Horwitz was found lying near the electric range in the kitchen by police who were called by a neighbor when Mrs. Horwitz failed to answer her telephone. Police said Mrs. Horwitz may have fallen against a glowing element of the range, igniting her clothing.

Hundreds of Ohio Dogs Bought For Use in Medical Experiments

Editor's Note: Following is the first in a series of two articles on the use of dogs in medical research.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hundreds of dogs are shipped each year from Ohio dog pounds to medical research laboratories, some through commercial "dog dealers" who buy in wholesale lots.

Nearly all are mongrel strays which otherwise would be destroyed by county dog pounds. Thousands of other dogs are killed each year by dog pounds or humane societies.

Many of those which wind up as research animals live for years while doctors study them in experiments seeking clues to improved human medicine.

Only a fraction of the thousands of dogs picked up as strays wind up in medical research and many reach laboratories through legitimate avenues.

But "dog dealers" do exist in Ohio. They contract with counties to get dogs, which they sell—at a profit—to research institutes.

Such contracts for sale of dogs by county pounds to commercial dealers are legally questionable. State law does not provide for county pounds to dispose of unwanted dogs through sales to commercial dealers. But the law does not specifically prohibit such contracts, either.

The law says dogs picked up as strays may be redeemed by owners, bought by persons willing to pay necessary license fees, sold for $3 each to certified non-profit research institutions or destroyed.

"Dog dealing" in other states has led to introduction of a proposed federal law to regulate sale and shipment of research animals. It has led to a raid in Baltimore, Md.

One Ohio organization, Animal Charity League, Inc., of Youngstown says the same undercover agent whose work led to the Baltimore raid has been investigating what the league calls "extensive" illegal dog dealing in Ohio.

This organization has no estimate of how much illegal business might be done in such animals in Ohio. The president of another humane society organization, Thomas E. Justice of Ohio Federated Humane Societies, has heard reports of sales by commercial dealers to research institutions, but has no proof of it.

At least three dealers are known to operate in the state. One says he does not send dogs outside Ohio. Another, an Indiana kennel, makes regular pickups of unwanted dogs in several central and western counties. A third ships dogs to a firm in Pennsylvania which sells them to research laboratories across the country.

One dog warden in a small county says the Indiana kennel pays $1 a dog, although state law provides a $3 payment and limits sales for research purposes to Ohio organizations certified by the Ohio Public Health Council.

Licking County commissioners recently ended a practice of giving dogs from its pound to a dealer who shipped them to Pennsylvania. They acted after a pet German Shepherd, picked up by the pound, vanished through a commercial dealer into the research dog market.

14 The Circleville Herald, Wed. Jan. 26, 1966
Circleville, Ohio

Licking County now has its unwanted dogs killed.

Most contracts with commercial dealers are in small counties. Larger counties generally contract with humane societies or similar organizations to pick up, shelter and dispose of stray dogs.

Most of the dogs picked up in larger counties are destroyed. In Cleveland 7,186 of the 11,287 strays collected last year were destroyed. Only 1,703 went for medical research. In Columbus, 5,000 of the 25,000 dogs picked up last year were destroyed. Almost none went for research.

Some of the 41 Ohio research organizations certified to get dogs from county pounds maintain their own collection staffs.

Others, including Ohio State University, buy research dogs from private dealers who have contracts with counties.

Ohio State pays $9 a dog, but says that is cheaper than maintaining a special force to collect dogs at $3 each from county pounds. Buying dogs also insures better animals for research, an Ohio State spokesman said.

"MY WIFE JUST HAD A HOSPITAL"—Visiting his wife, Theresa, at a hospital in Amarillo, Tex., Gerald Garst said he told a surprised police officer earlier in the day, "My wife just had a hospital, I'm taking her to the baby." Garst and his wife were en route to the hospital in their sports car in a snowstorm when she gave birth to a 6-pound boy. All three are doing fine.

Violinist, 75, Is Awaiting No Excuses To Retire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I never felt I had to tell any lies or make any excuses," says violin virtuoso Mischa Elman, admitting to his 75 years.

"When the time arrives that I have to find excuses, I will simply retire," he says.

Pink-faced and roly-poly, he seemed far from retirement as he played in a concert for International Concerts Exchange at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Music Center Tuesday night. It was the first appearance in the brilliant new hall for Elman, who made his initial concert appearance in Los Angeles 57 years ago.

Before the concert, he talked of his life and career as he rested in his suite at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. He and his wife had flown down from San Francisco, where last week they celebrated his 75th birthday with children and grandchildren who live in the bay area.

"I deal very little with the past," he explained. "I am more concerned with the present and therefore with the future, because the present takes care of the future."

"Every performance is a new performance. I feel as if I have to go out and conquer each audience anew—and myself as well as the audience."

This devotion to perfection has been implicit in the Elman art since his debut as a soloist in Berlin in 1904. As if to demonstrate his timelessness, he recently performed again in Berlin, playing the Khachaturian concerto.

"I like to include modern composers in my repertoire," he remarked. "I believe there are only two kinds of music—good and bad. It doesn't matter if it's old or new."

"I feel I am a contemporary. I am still here, thank God. I am performing."

Elman remains contemporaneous by the same rigorous schedule of practice he maintained as a youth in Russia.

"I don't have the right to let my admirers down," he said, "and so I practice every day; it is the duty of every artist to do so. But the advantage of age is that you learn what you must practice. You skip over the parts that you know and concentrate on those passages that are difficult for you."

Elman is an articulate man with a round, friendly face and a head almost devoid of hair. He retains an amazing zest for travel—amazing since he has likely traveled farther than any performer from Jenny Lind to Bob Hope.

Filibuster Is Aimed at Union Shop

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foes of the bill to end the right of states to ban the union shop forced a slowdown of Senate business today to block a parliamentary maneuver to get the measure up for debate.

Their first move was to force a lengthy reading of the journal of Monday's business.

The journal was 52 pages long, 30 of these consisting of President Johnson's budget message.

A filibuster was launched Monday even against a preliminary motion by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana to bring the bill up as the pending business.

But Mansfield arranged for a two-hour "morning hour" period at the opening of today's session during which, if he could get recognition, he could make a nondebatable motion to bring up the bill.

It was to forestall this that opponents asked for the reading of the journal. Under Senate rules, the journal reading and several other things must be done before Mansfield would be entitled to recognition.

Normally the Senate agrees each day to a routine motion to consider the journal of the previous day approved without reading.

Delay Is Understood In Reporting Burglary

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Police learned why a Houston man may have waited more than 24 hours to report a burglary. His clothes — all except a pair of undershorts — were stolen while he slept. He had no telephone in his motel room.

Ashville, Scioto Cop Pair In Junior High Tournament

Scioto defeated Jackson, 35-24 and Ashville rolled to a 68-51 win over Monroe in the Pickaway County Junior High tournament action Tuesday night at Walnut School.

Jackson led much of the time in the game with Scioto, but was outscored 14-5 in the final period. For the winners, Southern notched 17 markers and Bissell 13.

The Wildcat attack was paced by Eitel who notched 11 points.

Tiger Cage Teams Drop Ewing Tilts

The Circleville Junior High and Freshman basketball teams both were handed defeats at Lancaster Ewing yesterday afternoon.

The seventh and eighth graders were dropped by a 43-38 count. The frosh lost, 43-24.

The Tiger graders trailed most of the game. But during a two-minute span in the fourth quarter they pulled from an 11-point deficit to take a short-lived one-point edge. Lancaster Ewing bounced right back into the lead and never trailed again.

Ty Ankrom paced the locals with a 20-point effort. Game scoring laurels went to Francis of Ewing who notched 27.

THE Red and Black frosh were held scoreless in the final period, while the visitors were putting 18 points on the score board.

For three quarters, the Tigers ninth graders were right in the game. The score was 7-2 at the end of the first period with Ewing leading. By halftime, the locals had pulled to a 13-12 lead and as the fourth period started trailed by only one, 25-24.

The junior high team travels to Washington Twp. Thursday for a game.

Idle Wooster took over first place in the OC with an 8-1 mark.

The Berea school plotted its campaign differently from its fellow conference members. The Jackets got all their nonleague games out of the way first, and the opposition was of the kind to make men out of boys.

B-W was mauled by major foes Toledo, Detroit, St. Bonaventure and De Paul, and by small college powers Central State and Youngstown.

But Thompson's team picked up savvy along the way, and today all those drubbings are forgotten on the suburban Cleveland campus.

The Yellow Jackets, with two freshmen and three sophomores starting, trailed Akron 55-51 with 1:26 left, then put on a full-court press that wrecked the Zips. Dick Scott and Ted Johnson got 26 points each for B-W, Ken Mackovic 32 for Akron.

Ohio Colleges Are Loaded With Freshman Cage Talent

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—There's an extraordinary crop of college freshmen basketball talent in Ohio this year.

The fledgling phenoms are likely to make life more enjoyable for a host of Buckeye coaches in the next few years. But Ohio State, Cincinnati and Toledo figure to reap the greatest benefits.

Ohio State, going through its second straight so-so season, has a strong rookie crop coming up that could team with junior Ron Sepic and sophomore Bill Hosket next year to form a potent combination.

Kubek Quits Baseball at Age of 29

NEW YORK (AP)—The first think in what once seemed an impenetrable New York Yankee armor has left a deep crack in the Bombers' infield.

Shortstop Tony Kubek, hampered by injuries through most of last year's sixth-place Yankee finish, has decided, at age 29, to retire from baseball.

Kubek, who played on seven pennant winners in his nine years as a Yankee, announced his decision Monday after undergoing a thorough examination at the Mayo Clinic last fall.

Reports from the clinic indicated that pressure on Kubek's spinal cord which apparently is the result of a fracture in the cervical section of the neck could affect his reflexes.

The fracture, previously undiscovered, apparently was suffered several years ago and bone spurs and nerve damage have developed. Doctors at the clinic told Kubek that months of rest might alleviate the condition but the veteran infielder felt there was a possibility of permanent damage if he tried to play.

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers won three 1-0 games while compiling a 26-8 record during 1965.

"But he kept going back, back, back."

SVC Title at Stake

Overflow Crowd Is Expected At Logan Elm-Westfall Tilt

A capacity plus crowd is expected at Logan Elm High School for Friday's basketball tilt between the Westfall Mustangs and the LE Braves.

Adding to the intense natural rivalry existing between the two Pickaway County schools is the fact that the final outcome of the Scioto Valley Conference hinges on the tilt.

If Keith Merrin's Braves can add the game to their present 3-0 conference record, they will clinch a tie for the league crown since only Paint Valley (2-1) will remain on their loop schedule.

The Larry Wilson coached Mustangs, 2-0 in the SVC, will have two of the league's "weaker" teams remaining on the schedule after Friday in Laurelville (1-2) and Piketon (0-3).

UNIOTO, Piketon and Laurelville are virtually out of the league race. Paint Valley, with a 2-1 record, is still in mathematical contention.

Westfall has a 9-2 overall record, having lost to defending district champ Jonathan Alder by one point, and to Zane Trace by two. Victories posted by the Mustangs include a 79-72 triple overtime decision at Teays Valley and a 56-55 win over Circleville, both Class AA schools.

Logan Elm was dumped, 64-49, by the Mustangs in the fourth tilt of the season for both teams. The game was a non-league test at Westfall.

The other loss for the 10-2 Braves was to Huntington, 56-48, in the Zane Trace Holiday tournament.

Comparing statistics of the two teams, Logan Elm is averaging 59.9 points per tilt compared to 51.7 for opponents. Westfall has outscored opponents 66-56.8 on the average.

Although the Mustangs score at a slightly higher rate, they also permit foes to tally a few more points than do the Braves. The average margin of difference is about the same for the two schools.

LEADING the Logan Elm offense is Russ Merrin, slender 6-3 junior, a brother of the coach, Merrin. He has tallied 205 points for an average of just over 17 per game.

For the Mustangs, Neil Coleman has a 17.3 scoring average. Both are fine outside shots.

Although Merrin is the only Brave averaging more than 10 points per game, five other members of the team are capable of a double figure production on a given night. They are Don Schaaf, Darryl Reichelderfer, Tom Smith, Jim Moorhead and Steve Fouch.

For Westfall, Tom Hamman is hitting the nets at a 14.7 clip per game. Brad Thompson, Tom Beard, Tom Scribner and Ray Mowery have all cracked the double figure scoring column at various times this season.

The two young coaches of the teams favor different styles of basketball.

Wilson, second year mentor for Westfall, prefers to see his cagers use the fast break whenever possible to collect the quick basket. His team will utilize a full-court press much of the time, particularly since the Braves have proven vulnerable to this defense in other games this year.

A MERRIN coached team, on the other hand, will seldom use either the fast break or the full court press.

The Braves rely on a tenacious man-to-man defense and a controlled offense.

Preceding Friday's game will be a jitney supper sponsored by the Logan Elm Booster Club. School officials there expect the crowd to arrive early.

Ohio State, going through its second straight so-so season, has a strong rookie crop coming up that could team with junior Ron Sepic and sophomore Bill Hosket next year to form a potent combination.

Former Lima Shawnee ace Jeff Miller, Columbus East-moor's Steve Howell; Dennis Meadors of Dayton Meadowdale; Steve Barnard of Columbus West and Bruce Schabel of Williamstown, W. Va., are the big names on the Buckeye frosh club.

Miller, a 6-4 corner man with good moves, is leading the team with a 24.2 points per game average and 41 rebounds.

Toledo Coach Bobby Nichols can hardly wait to put his freshmen finds on the floor. The first-year Rockets have bombed the baskets at a merry clip, averaging 107.8 points a game in sweeping aside 11 foes.

John Brisker, Bob Miller, Steve Mix, John Rudley, Calvin Lawshe and Jim Hayes are all scoring in double figures with Brisker leading the way on a 24.0 average.

Brisker and Rudley are all-state players from Michigan and Miller, who has connected at a 60 per cent clip in averaging 19.6 a game, is from Upstate New York.

Mix, 6-foot-6 and growing, is the team's leading rebounder. Cincinnati, bidding for a Missouri Valley Title, should be bolstered considerably by one of its strongest frosh quints in years.

Dick Taucke, an All-Ohio from Cincinnati LaSalle, is the top gun with a 22.5 average in six games. The 6-6 Hauke has canned 53 per cent of his shots and picked off 83 rebounds.

Dayton Cager Is Tipped as All-America

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's getting close to voting time for the 1966 college basketball All-America. One of the leading candidates is Henry Finkel of the University of Dayton Flyers.

The 6-foot-11 senior from Union City, N.J., demonstrated his finesse Tuesday night in pacing Dayton to an 85-57 home-court triumph over Los Angeles Loyola.

The 23-year-old Dayton star missed just one shot as the Flyers chalked up their 14th victory against only three defeats. He made 12 of 13 tries from the field and got four-four from the foul line. That added up to 28 points.

Finkel, a "proven star" in the words of his coach, Don Donohue, will face sterner opposition Saturday night when the Flyers invade Philadelphia to battle the St. Joseph's Hawks, fifth-ranked in the Associated Press poll.

None of the AP Top Ten teams saw action as the mid-year examination lull continued.

Ron Williams, West Virginia's star sophomore, sparked a fast break with 24 points to lead the mountaineers to an easy 90-79 road victory over Pitt. Larry Szykowny tossed in 29 points for the losing Panthers.

Alabama also won on the road, beating Mississippi State 71-63 in a Southeastern Conference game. Creighton and Villanova, each playing at home, beat LaSalle and St. Peter's of New Jersey, respectively.

Wally Andezunas' 27 points paced the Bluejays over LaSalle's Explorers 104-90. Bill Melchionni got 23 points for Villanova in the Wildcasts' 94-66 conquest of St. Peter's. It was victory No. 1,000 for Villanova since the Philadelphia Main Line team started playing in 1921.

Views on Television - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Long ago, when television was young and viewers were unsophisticated, a lot of us believed it would start a cultural revolution.

People predicted it would bring fine theater to millions who could never get to Broadway. It would present great music to people far from opera houses and concert halls. Millions would be able to see things to which only thousands had had access before.

Certainly some of this has come to pass. We have been able to see some fine dramatic performances and to hear fine music. But that has been enough to generate considerable excitement when we are promised a rare treat.

CBS now has one, it announced today, coming up in early spring: Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman," with Lee J. Cobb and Mildred Dunnock playing their original roles of Willie Loman and wife in the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama of Broadway's 1949 season.

Miller will adapt the play for a two-hour broadcast Sunday, ABC is proceeding with big plans for a quality anthology series called "ABC 66" with emphasis on original dramas, musical comedies and a variety of other forms. No date for the series has been fixed and it is probable that we won't see it until next fall.

ABC announced Tuesday that Hubbell Robinson would be the ABC executive in charge of the series. Robinson was in charge of CBS programming in the golden days of "Playhouse 90."

A revival of a fine play and a projected series of high quality do not necessarily mean that television thinking has taken a new turn. It does suggest that network executives are concerned about widespread criticism of the quality and content of much of the current output.

CBS concluded its two-part "National Health Test" Tuesday night with 37 more questions covering subjects ranging from the length of time a polio vaccine provided immunization to the best way to lose weight. It touched on such diverse subjects as alcoholism, narcotic addiction and exercise.

Unhappily it had to report that in a national sample of the population taking the test, almost half were graded "poor" in their knowledge of good health practices.

Recommended tonight: "This Proud Land, ABC, 9-10 EST, third in a series with Robert Preston traveling in "The Sun Country," with Greer Garson as guide some of the time.

Big O Leads Royals to First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics got an Oscar and no longer are leading the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division.

Actually the Celtics didn't get Oscar Robertson, they just got the business from him as the Big O led the Cincinnati Royals over Boston 113-101 Tuesday night.

The victory moved the Royals into first place by a game over the Celtics and 1½ games over the Philadelphia 76ers, who edged Los Angeles 110-106 in the first game of a doubleheader at New York.

In other games, the New York Knicks followed the 76ers' victory with one of their own, 115-100 over Detroit, and St. Louis crushed San Francisco 142-107.

Robertson scored 35 points and contributed 10 assists as the Royals built up a 15-point margin, 84-69, at the end of three periods on their home court.

Adrian Smith added 24 points and Jerry Lucas 18 points and 32 rebounds for the Royals. Boston, hurt by the absence of Willie Naulls, Tom Sanders and John Havlicek because of injuries, was led by Sam Jones with 24 points.

Otto Pledges 'Skins Plenty Of Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Otto Graham, new coach of the Washington Redskins, promised the fans plenty of excitement and the players plenty of hard work next season — but he did not predict whether the team would do better than this year's 6-8 record.

"I realize that winning is the most important thing in pro-football, but I think you have to put on a good show, too," Graham, 44, said in an interview with the Washington Post.

Graham, who has quarterbacked the Cleveland Browns to six straight Eastern Division titles and three National Football League championships, was selected Tuesday for a long-term Redskins contract at a salary reportedly about $50,000 a year.

Graham said he would "rather risk losing some games by say 35-28 and have the fans up off their seats with excitement," than win a dull 3-0 game.

The Redskins front office, meanwhile, said that while it had put no time limit on Graham, a winning team is expected next year.

SATURN 5—A test version of the giant Saturn 5 booster rocket arrives at Cape Kennedy aboard the seagoing barge Poseidon, which carried it from New Orleans, La., where it was built by Boeing. This is the 138-foot first stage. The first launch is set for January 1967.

Ohio Cherokees Excited By Antipoverty Program

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—Hope of improving their standards of living is causing a ripple of excitement these days among an estimated 175 people of Cherokee Indian descent living in this area.

Announcement of a recently approved grant of $11,337 for a study of needed antipoverty projects has raised the hopes of most and favorable reaction seemed unanimous.

The federal grant specifies that at least two Cherokee Indians be included on the Community Action Committee that will make the study and guide the projects.

Most of the Indians who settled about 1860 along Straight Creek in Adams County were from Oklahoma. Their descendants today reside in an area near the confluence of the Pike, Highland, Adams and Ross County lines.

C. A. Way, assistant county school superintendent and a member of the committee, has received a list of those with Indian blood. Selection of the two to serve on the committee is expected soon.

It is estimated that 175 people of Cherokee descent live in the area. Their economic conditions range from what observers say is tolerable to very bad. Many are on relief rolls. Among the youth, the school drop-out rate ranges from 70 to 90 per cent.

Some do not have electricity and haul water from some distance. Coal and wood stoves provide heat for cooking and living. Newspaper often serve three purposes—providing reading material, wall paper and broken window coverings.

Most do a little farming on poor land.

While some deny any Indian blood, the majority are proud to claim their heritage. As a group, they resent anyone who lays false claim to Indian blood.

Perhaps the most articulate among the group is Orville Perkins of Dry Bone Road, Pike County.

Asked his opinion of the proposed antipoverty program, he said: "There wouldn't be anything better if it goes through. I think the money question is one of the most important. We need more job training and better job opportunities."

"If we have a little more to do with, we can move into the homes and raise our standard of living. I'm just lucky to have this house. There are families living in much worse places and paying higher rent," he commented about his modest shingle home.

Currently Perkins, who has a large family, is awaiting surgery and unable to work.

Mrs. Cosby Gibson is another Pike County proud of her Indian blood. Widowed several years ago, she owns her own home. Her 31-year-old nephew, James L. Nichols, has enrolled

Kiwanians See Slides of Hawaii

Ned Harden, local auto dealer, was guest speaker for a regular dinner meeting of Circleville Kiwanis Club Monday evening at The Mecca Restaurant.

Harden presented the program on "Hawaii." His talk was supplemented by a series of colored slides that he took during a visit there last summer.

Eugene (Doc) Owens was in charge of program arrangements.

Five members of the Westside Club in Columbus were guests at the dinner session.

Logan Elm Senior Accepted by College

David K. Willison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Willison, Route 4, has been accepted for enrollment at Southern Ohio College in Cincinnati.

Willison, a senior at Logan Elm High School, plans to enter the college this fall and major in drafting.

In the home study course offered by a school of practical electricity and industrial training in an effort to better his opportunities.

Among the possibilities being discussed by the Community Action Committee is assistance for the families through the Bureau of Indian Affairs. The antipoverty program being planned here includes all the needs of the community, not just the Indians.

Virginia Tells High Court Its Poll Tax Is 'Rational'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Virginia has told the Supreme Court its poll tax is "rational, reasonable and nondiscriminatory" and therefore wholly constitutional.

"It is administered in Virginia without racial discrimination," attorney George D. Gibson of Richmond said Tuesday in defending the poll tax against joint attack by the federal government, the American Civil Liberties Union and five Virginia Negroes.

Gibson carried Virginia's argument to the court after Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall described the tax as "the one weapon remaining" to keep thousands of newly registered Southern Negroes from voting.

Gibson, a private attorney, contended that the poll tax is a proper exercise of the state's "sovereign right" to determine voter qualifications in local elections.

The purpose of the tax, he said, is "to eliminate the illiterates." Unless constitutional privileges are infringed, he said, "the determination of voter qualifications is the state's alone."

Gibson concludes his argument today. The court then takes the case under advisement for decision later this term.

Marshall, a Negro, said the government decided to support the five Virginia Negroes' appeal "because of the grave importance it attaches to this problem." A three-judge U.S. District Court in Alexandria upheld the Virginia tax in November 1964.

In Alabama and Mississippi, Marshall said, thousands of Negroes who registered for the first time under the 1965 Voting Rights Act have not paid their poll tax. If the poll tax is not declared unconstitutional as a voter qualification, he said, they still will be unable to vote in primaries and in the general election.

Virginia, Alabama, Texas, Mississippi and Vermont use the poll tax in local elections. It is barred as a voter qualification in federal elections by the 24th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, adopted in 1964.

KC Officers At Seminar

Four members of Hannan Council 5297, Knights of Columbus, attended a one-day seminar conducted by Flaget Council at Chillicothe.

Attending from here were William Thornton, district deputy; Stanley Stevens, past grand knight; Ralph May, acting grand knight; and Myron Schelb, warden.

Heading the group of K of C officers and activities chairmen at the meeting was Leo P. Stark, Columbus, state deputy for the K of C.

The meeting was one of a series of nine area meetings being held throughout the state during the next three weeks to indoctrinate K of C council officials in the Ohio State Councils Programs for the remainder of the operational year.

A first-degree initiation was held in conjunction with the area meeting. Initiated into the local council were James P. Shea, John Ravestien and William Wisenberger.

Acting Grand Knight May reminded the members to attend the open house scheduled 8 p.m. Saturday in the local council rooms to honor Stanley Stevens. Stevens is planning to move his family to Dayton in the near future.

Amanda FFA Holds Meeting

Willis Lowery, president, was in charge of the business session when the Amanda - Clearcreek Future Farmers of America met at the high school.

Committee reports were given, including details on a food basket given to a needy family at Christmas.

The club decided to purchase a purebred gilt as a club project. Rick Lones and Harold Furness were appointed to set up a schedule for basketball games for members.

The chapter also decided to build and paint "welcome" signs that will be placed at the Amanda corporation limits.

Allen, Columbiana Projects Approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes has added his approval to U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity approved community action programs in Operation Head Start in Allen County and general antipoverty development in Columbiana County.

Federal grants will pay 90 per cent of the preschool classes' costs at Lima and suburban Shawnee and Perry Township for 240 children, costing $82,411, and for a community action committee survey by the group headquartered at Lisbon, costing $14,130.

Ohio Town Is Awarded $652,272 for Renewal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Urban Renewal Administration approved Tuesday a $304,501 grant and $347,771 loan to London, Ohio, for its Shady Park renewal project.

The URA also announced a $3,000 grant to the Ohio Department of Development to help prepare comprehensive plans for Adams County.

44-Year-Old Negro Woman Nominated Federal Judge

NEW YORK (AP)—When Constance Baker Motley was a high school senior in her home town of New Haven, Conn., her father, a chef, asked why she had already decided to become a lawyer.

"...Law is difficult," she replied, "and I want to do something that's difficult."

She certainly did. Most of Mrs. Motley's adult years have been spent in the eye of one legal hurricane or another, and her selection Tuesday by President Johnson to be a federal district court judge is not likely to ease her burden.

She is believed to be the first Negro woman to be nominated for a federal judgeship.

Northern born and Southern educated, with graduate work at Columbia University Law School, she has helped break several precedents in her 21-year career.

As second-ranking attorney in the legal defense fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People—the $2-million-a-year agency that handles many of the nation's civil rights cases—she has argued many times before the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1964, she left the fund to enter a special election, and became New York's first Negro woman state senator. A year later, she was named by the Democrats as Manhattan's first woman borough president, a $35,000-a-year post.

Mrs. Motley, 44, has always seemed to move with the storm.

She represented James H. Meredith when he became the first known Negro to enroll at the University of Mississippi. She led a battery of five lawyers to get Harvey Gantt admitted to Clemson College in 1962. She was the NAACP's chief legal tactician in the struggle over Alabama school desegregation, and she was instrumental in getting Charlayne Hunter and Hamilton Holmes into the University of Georgia in 1961.

While still in law school, Mrs. Motley was brought onto the NAACP fund's staff by Thurgood Marshall, then its chief counsel, later a U.S. circuit judge, and now solicitor-general.

Mrs. Motley has sometimes found the machinery of the law moving too slowly.

"Court processes are slow," she once observed. "You always feel that you wish they'd hurry up and rule...but when you finally win, then everything is wonderful."

Mrs. Motley is the wife of real estate man Joel W. Motley, and the mother of 15-year-old Joel Jr.

"I think a woman has to be good enough at her job to justify her skipping the housework," she once said. "She certainly should be able to earn enough to justify paying a housekeeper."

Virginia Tells High Court Its Poll Tax Is 'Rational'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virginia has told the Supreme Court its poll tax is "rational, reasonable and nondiscriminatory" and therefore wholly constitutional.

"It is administered in Virginia without racial discrimination," attorney George D. Gibson of Richmond said Tuesday in defending the poll tax against joint attack by the federal government, the American Civil Liberties Union and five Virginia Negroes.

Gibson carried Virginia's argument to the court after Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall described the tax as "the one weapon remaining" to keep thousands of newly registered Southern Negroes from voting.

Gibson, a private attorney, contended that the poll tax is a proper exercise of the state's "sovereign right" to determine voter qualifications in local elections.

The purpose of the tax, he said, is "to eliminate the illiterates." Unless constitutional privileges are infringed, he said, "the determination of voter qualifications is the state's alone."

Gibson concludes his argument today. The court then takes the case under advisement for decision later this term.

Marshall, a Negro, said the government decided to support the five Virginia Negroes' appeal "because of the grave importance it attaches to this problem." A three-judge U.S. District Court in Alexandria upheld the Virginia tax in November 1964.

In Alabama and Mississippi, Marshall said, thousands of Negroes who registered for the first time under the 1965 Voting Rights Act have not paid their poll tax. If the poll tax is not declared unconstitutional as a voter qualification, he said, they still will be unable to vote in primaries and in the general election.

Virginia, Alabama, Texas, Mississippi and Vermont use the poll tax in local elections. It is barred as a voter qualification in federal elections by the 24th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, adopted in 1964.

KC Officers At Seminar

Four members of Hannan Council 5297, Knights of Columbus, attended a one-day seminar conducted by Flaget Council at Chillicothe.

Attending from here were William Thornton, district deputy; Stanley Stevens, past grand knight; Ralph May, acting grand knight; and Myron Schell, warden.

Heading the group of K of C officers and activities chairmen at the meeting was Leo P. Stark, Columbus, state deputy for the K of C.

The meeting was one of a series of nine area meetings being held throughout the state during the next three weeks to indoctrinate K of C council officials in the Ohio State Councils Programs for the remainder of the operational year.

A first-degree initiation was held in conjunction with the area meeting. Initiated into the local council were James P. Shea, John Ravestien and William Wisenberger.

Acting Grand Knight May reminded the members to attend the open house scheduled 8 p.m. Saturday in the local council rooms to honor Stanley Stevens. Stevens is planning to move his family to Dayton in the near future.

Amanda FFA Holds Meeting

Willis Lowery, president, was in charge of the business session when the Amanda - Clearcreek Future Farmers of America met at the high school.

Committee reports were given, including details on a food basket given to a needy family at Christmas.

The club decided to purchase a purebred gilt as a club project. Rick Lones and Harold Furness were appointed to set up a schedule for basketball games for members.

The chapter also decided to build and paint "welcome" signs that will be placed at the Amanda corporation limits.

Allen, Columbiana Projects Approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has added his approval to U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity approved community action programs in Operation Head Start in Allen County and general anti-poverty development in Columbiana County.

Federal grants will pay 90 percent of the preschool classes' costs at Lima and suburban Shawnee and Perry Township for 240 children, costing $82,411, and for a community action committee survey by the group headquartered at Lisbon, costing $14,130.

Ohio Town Is Awarded $652,720 for Renewal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Urban Renewal Administration approved Tuesday a $304,501 grant and $347,771 loan to London, Ohio, for its Shady Park renewal project.

The URA also announced a $3,000 grant to the Ohio Department of Development to help prepare comprehensive plans for Adams County.

44-Year-Old Negro Woman Nominated Federal Judge

NEW YORK (AP) — When Constance Baker Motley was a high school senior in her home town of New Haven, Conn., her father, a chef, asked why she had already decided to become a lawyer.

"...Law is difficult," she replied, "and I want to do something that's difficult."

She certainly did. Most of Mrs. Motley's adult years have been spent in the eye of one legal hurricane or another, and her selection Tuesday by President Johnson to be a federal district court judge is not likely to ease her burden.

She is believed to be the first Negro woman to be nominated for a federal judgeship.

Northern born and Southern educated, with graduate work at Columbia University Law School, she has helped break several precedents in her 21-year career.

As second-ranking attorney in the legal defense fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People — the $2-million-a-year agency that handles many of the nation's civil rights cases — she has argued many times before the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1964, she left the fund to enter a special election, and became New York's first Negro woman state senator. A year later, she was named by the Democrats as Manhattan's first woman borough president, a $35,000-a-year post.

Mrs. Motley, 44, has always seemed to move with the storm. She represented James H. Meredith when he became the first known Negro to enroll at the University of Mississippi. She led a battery of five lawyers to get Harvey Gantt admitted to Clemson College in 1962. She was the NAACP's chief legal tactician in the struggle over Alabama school desegregation, and she was instrumental in getting Charlayne Hunter and Hamilton Holmes into the University of Georgia in 1961.

While still in law school, Mrs. Motley was brought onto the NAACP fund's staff by Thurgood Marshall, then its chief counsel, later a U.S. circuit judge, and now solicitor-general.

Mrs. Motley has sometimes found the machinery of the law moving too slowly.

"Court processes are slow," she once observed. "You always feel that you wish they'd hurry up and rule...but when you finally win, then everything is wonderful."

Mrs. Motley is the wife of real estate man Joel W. Motley, and the mother of 15-year-old Joel Jr.

"I think a woman has to be good enough at her job to justify her skipping the housework," she once said. "She certainly should be able to earn enough to justify paying a housekeeper."

Ohio Cherokees Excited By Antipoverty Program

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—Hope of improving their standards of living is causing a ripple of excitement these days among an estimated 175 people of Cherokee Indian descent living in this area.

Announcement of a recently approved grant of $11,337 for a study of needed antipoverty projects has raised the hopes of most and favorable reaction seemed unanimous.

The federal grant specifies that at least two Cherokee Indians be included on the Community Action Committee that will make the study and guide the projects.

Most of the Indians who settled about 1860 along Straight Creek in Adams County were from Oklahoma. Their descendants today reside in an area near the confluence of the Pike, Highland, Adams and Ross County lines.

C. A. Way, assistant county school superintendent and a member of the committee, has received a list of those with Indian blood. Selection of the two to serve on the committee is expected soon.

It is estimated that 175 people of Cherokee descent live in the area. Their economic conditions range from what observers say is tolerable to very bad. Many are on relief rolls. Among the youth, the school drop-out rate ranges from 70 to 90 percent.

Some do not have electricity and haul water from some distance. Coal and wood stoves provide heat for cooking and living. Newspaper often serve three purposes—providing reading material, wall paper and broken window coverings.

Most do a little farming on poor land.

While some deny any Indian blood, the majority are proud to claim their heritage. As a group, they resent anyone who lays false claim to Indian blood.

Perhaps the most articulate among the group is Orville Perkins of Dry Bone Road, Pike County.

Asked his opinion of the proposed antipoverty program, he said: "There wouldn't be anything better if it goes through. I think the money question is one of the most important. We need more job training and better job opportunities."

"If we have a little more to do with, we can move into the homes and raise our standard of living. I'm just lucky to have this house. There are families living in much worse places and paying higher rent," he commented about his modest shingle home.

Currently Perkins, who has a large family, is awaiting surgery and unable to work.

Mrs. Cosby Gibson is another Pike County proud of her Indian blood. Widowed several years ago, she owns her own home. Her 31-year-old nephew, James L. Nichols, has enrolled

Kiwanians See Slides of Hawaii

Ned Harden, local auto dealer, was guest speaker for a regular dinner meeting of Circleville Kiwanis Club Monday evening at The Mecca Restaurant.

Harden presented the program on "Hawaii." His talk was supplemented by a series of colored slides that he took during a visit there last summer.

Eugene (Doc) Owens was in charge of program arrangements.

Five members of the Westside Club in Columbus were guests at the dinner session.

Logan Elm Senior Accepted by College

David K. Willison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Willison, Route 4, has been accepted for enrollment at Southern Ohio College in Cincinnati.

Willison, a senior at Logan Elm High School, plans to enter the college this fall and major in drafting.

in the home study course offered by a school of practical electricity and industrial training in an effort to better his opportunities.

Among the possibilities being discussed by the Community Action Committee is assistance for the families through the Bureau of Indian Affairs. The antipoverty program being planned here includes all the needy of the community, not just the Indians.
